Press Release

The International Meeting in support to people's war in India on the occasion of the 10th anniversary of the formation of the CPI (Maoist) has been successfully held. It was attended by delegates and representatives of political parties and organizations from Brazil, Turkey, Germany, Galicia, France, Austria, Italy, Netherlands. Messages were sent from Canada, Spain, Afghanistan (Party and organization), Sri Lanka, France (another organization), Greece. A report about the action of Maoists in Tunisia in support to the PW in India has been presented. The joining the International Committee by the Network of Communist Blogs and another celebrating initiative in Ireland have been announced.

The meeting realized a large unity in the support to the people's war in India and resounded a strong Lal Salaam! to the Communist Party of India (Maoist), the Indian masses, the People's Liberation Guerrilla Army, the leaders and cadres of the CPI (Maoist). It expressed a strong appreciation for the initiative taken by the International Committee, important in the world, in conjunction with the celebrations in India, in the fire of people's war against the suppression campaigns by the Indian regime and imperialism.

The meeting took place over two days. It was first opened with a salute to the martyrs of the Indian revolution and the Communist Party of India (Maoist).

After a brief introduction of the Committee and the singing of International, there was the reading of the great message addressed to the meeting by the CPI (Maoist), welcomed with applause and excitement.

Then the International Committee, in its report, explained how the support to the people's war is broadening and deepening the popular support for the war, from its birth to the International Days, to the successful International Conference in Hamburg, organized with the League Against Imperialist Aggression (BGIA) and the participation and support of political parties, organizations, solidarity committees; how this initiative continued and how it contributes to oppose the Operation Green Hunt, to the solidarity with political prisoners, to the support the people's war, by understanding how important the PW in India is in the struggle between imperialism and proletarians and peoples and how it affects the balance of power in the world, how much it contributes and shows the way for the anti-imperialist and liberation struggles of the peoples and how it helps the unity of the Maoist communists, anti-imperialist, democratic and progressive forces; and, finally, how it is a delimitating expression of proletarian internationalism. For this reason, the action of the Committee and the international support for the PW, are today under attack by the Indian government and imperialism and considered an important "external enemy" along with the "main internal enemy" represented by the people's war led by the CPI (Maoist).

This Meeting was necessary for us supporters of the People's War, on the occasion of the 10th anniversary of the formation of the Party leading it.

At the same time, the Committee has strongly condemned the state repression in India, that, now with the Modi regime aims to wipe out any form of political opposition and expressed solidarity with Varavara Rao and all the participants at the Forum for the an Alternative Politics, who were prevented to participate a meeting for the 10th anniversary of the Party.

Then all the attending committees, parties and organizations present made their speech, expressing their support to the Meeting and the People's War and the salute to all fighters in India, the Indian masses and the CPI (Maoist). In the speeches, this support has been connected with the burning issues of the international situation, from Ukraine to Kurdistan, from Brazil to Europe.

A strong solidarity has been expressed to the political prisoners locked up in the jails of imperialism in India and around the world. The detention of Abimael Guzman, the chairman Gonzalo of PCP, whose "speech from the cage" occurs in these days the 22nd anniversary, has also been remembered.

In the speeches there were information and assessments about the stage and problems of the support campaigns in the different countries of the world. Particularly significant were the messages from comrades in very far parts of the world, from Canada and Afghanistan, who although did not succeed, despite their efforts, to attend the Meeting, reaffirmed their support and especially their commitment to make their contribution, to provide suggestions and proposals, to strengthen the international impact of the support to the people's war and the role of the International Committee of being a center of initiative and the vehicle for promoting and coordinating the campaign with other forces which, although are not part of the Committee, are engaged in the forefront in supporting the people's war, the CPI (Maoist) and the Indian revolution.

The International Meeting - said the Committee – does not close, but indeed opens the initiatives on the occasion of the 10th anniversary and from this podium ICSPWI has expressed together with all the attending forces greeting and support to all initiatives, messages, meetings that are held or will take place in these weeks.

The first day ended with the exciting and deep speech by the comrades of the Proletarian Revolutionary Feminist Movement, who saluted and appreciated the role of women in the People's War, the revolution, the development of the movement, the construction of genuine revolutionary parties, suggesting that women's organizations around the world take a front-line role against imperialism and the Indian regime, the regime of feudal-capitalist oppression and mass rapes against women.

The second day has seen a free debate between the participants in which they addressed issues to deepen the development of people's war, the meaning of the unity of the Maoists in the CPI (Maoist), the problems of the best political and organizational forms to develop the support to the PW.

Then the discussion turned on the current state of preparations and the function of the International Delegation that is going to challenge the Indian regime in his home and the need that it helps at the best to expose the regime of social oppression and repression and to isolate and stop the Operation Green Hunt, the repression that now hits even prominent democratic personalities of India and the Forum for an Alternative Politics. That which is going to India is a Delegation of solidarity activists of different nature, within an international campaign that will make strongly feel its representativeness among the masses in solidarity around the world.

The majority of the participants committed to intensify their efforts to realize such a Delegation.

In an atmosphere of unity and enthusiasm “with revolutionary spirit and fervor” meeting has gone to the conclusion, hearing again the words of the CPI (Maoist) and the final part of his “call to the people of India”, which make very clear the nature and stage of the great battle going on in India:

Finally, to the words of CPI(Maoist):

“...we wish to speak about the great efforts you are doing in support of the people’s war in India. The news of your campaigns, its vivid images, are being taken to our ranks, PLGA combatants and revolutionary masses as widely as possible through our open and secret magazines and several other means. When they know that their sisters and brothers in far off lands stand up in militant solidarity with them, when they see images of protests before Indian embassies, of wall writings taking the message of their revolution to masses in those countries, their hearts swell with pride — we are not alone, our people are there, we are everywhere. Your acts have inspired us; they have made us more determined. We will strive our utmost to fulfil the confidence you have reposed in us. Our future, the future of the world revolution, the future of the world proletariat, oppressed nations and oppressed people is certainly bright but the path is a thorny, arduous and full of zigzags. The future of our enemies, the imperialists and their lackeys the world over, is dark and their doom is inevitable.”

The International Meeting replied:

You are not alone! We are ready to fulfill all our duties in every field ...

Lastly, a strong Lal Salaam, the singing of International and the slogans:

Long Live the CPI (Maoist)!

Long Live the People's War in India!

Long Live proletarian internationalism!

have closed the Meeting and cemented the success of this two days.

Final Communiqué on the decisions.

The International Committee of Support to the GP in India has taken three tasks:

- Publication of all the speeches and messages to the Meeting, as soon as possible
- A new International Day in support of the people's war in the coming months
- Intensify the preparation for the International Delegation.

Other decisions:

To connect the campaign for political prisoners in India to all campaigns for political prisoners ongoing in the world.

To develop specific initiatives in the factories of Indian multinational companies, particularly in Europe, to create an internationalist tie between workers in the imperialist countries and Indian workers.

To accept the proposal to support a call for women a bridge between the women's movement and the struggle of women in the People's War.

International Committee of Support to the People's War in India

Introduction

International Committee to Support the People's War in India

Comrades,

On behalf of the International Committee we welcome and greet to all comrades and organizations attending here, all those who participate through messages, all those who are developing similar initiatives on the same occasion in these days, all those who support the people's war in India throughout the world, although they can not celebrate with us the 10th anniversary of the CPI (Maoist) which guides, organizes and, we are confident, will lead it to victory.

The meeting we hold today is not the 2nd International Conference we had proposed and planned after the highly successful Conference in Hamburg on November 24, 2012.

We had proposed to hold this 2nd Conference in another great country, outside Europe, in Brazil, at the center of the world clash between imperialism and peoples, where right this year we have seen an explosion of the class struggle and popular uprising and where the supporters of PW in India are numerous and have a strong mass base. Also to allow also many forces in Latin America to take part directly in the Conference, so as it was not possible at the Conference in Hamburg.

This decision is consistent with the very nature of the International Committee, that works to unite the peoples of the world in support to PW in India, according to the concept “in the fire of class struggle and closely tied with the masses.”

However, the comrades in Brazil told us that they were not yet in condition to organize such a conference and pointed out also the need to keep high the struggle and the support to the PW in the imperialist Europe. We accepted their assessment but we keep our idea and we will propose again to work to realize the 2nd International Conference in Brazil in the next period.

In no way we could leave the important occasion of the 10th anniversary of the formation of the Communist Party of India (Maoist) without a struggling and supporting event. Therefore, relying on our own forces, we decided to organize an international and internationalist meeting in the same month in which the celebration of the 10th anniversary is unleashed in India, in the fire of the PW and withstanding the genocidal state repression by the Indian regime, that in these days is going on.

So, our meeting is with the delegates who accepted the proposal of the International Committee.

It is carried out in a confidential form, according to the concrete conditions of the country and the place where we are. Its aim is to open rather than conclude the initiatives of support for the 10th anniversary throughout the world, looking at the goal of the 2nd International Conference.

The meeting is an opportunity to allow all the attending forces, and after them all the forces participating in different ways, to debate, to plan the continuation of the activities of the Committee with the existing proposals, first of all the International Delegation to India, as well as any other initiative the participants will put forward and suggest.

The meeting will be opened by the reading of the message the CPI (M) prepared for this occasion, as its own participation.

Message to the Meeting in Italy in Occasion of the 10th Anniversary of the formation of the Communist Party of India (Maoist)!

Central Committee, CPI(Maoist), 10 September 2014

To all the delegates who have gathered in this Conference,
To all the parties, organisations and individuals who have worked to organise it,
To the International Committee to support the people's war in India that is leading this Conference,

Warmest revolutionary greetings and heartfelt Lal Salam from the CPI (Maoist) and the People's Liberation Guerrilla Army (PLGA), Revolutionary People's Committees (RPCs), Revolutionary Mass Organisations and revolutionary people of India, it leads.

We greet you especially with the joy of celebrating the momentous 10th anniversary of the foundation of our party and with deep appreciation of your organising this Conference in conjunction with these celebrations exactly in the condition of great turmoil in the world. The formation of the CPI (Maoist) which united the two major revolutionary streams in India realised a dream long cherished by the revolutionaries and masses. In its 10 years of its existence 2332 comrades, including members of the Politbureau, Central Committee, State, Region, District, Sub-zone, Area and Village level party committees, primary party members and many more of the PLGA and the United Front, have made the supreme sacrifice to fulfil the revolutionary tasks it had set itself. We pay homage to these martyrs, to the revolutionary masses who have willingly suffered loss of lives and unimaginable repression to participate and support the people's war, and to all those who laid down their lives for the great cause of communism throughout the world.

For us the celebration of the 10th anniversary of our party is an opportunity to take stock of our achievements and shortcomings. The PLGA, People's Militia and revolutionary masses led by it have waged heroic political and military battles against a heavily armed and trained enemy, guided and backed by imperialism, particularly US imperialism. Our comrades in jail have written splendid tales of resistance. We celebrate these achievements, aware of our shortcomings, in order to forge ahead along the path of protracted people's war.

Comrades,

Allow us to first place an account of the past ten years.

During this period our party, the PLGA, RPCs and all the revolutionary mass organisations led by it have striven hard to realise the tasks we shouldered at the time of its formation. In 2007, defeating the persistent attempts made by the enemy to thwart us, we successfully convened our long cherished Unity Congress, the 9th Congress. This enabled us to further deepen and enrich our ideological, political unity. An exhaustive review was made of the achievements and drawbacks, successes and failures, of the two and half years since the merger. Along with central and principal task other important tasks were set. The leadership was further strengthened. Thus, our party emerged from the Congress, more sharp in its ideological-political positions, more consolidated in its unity, more steeled in its determination and fighting spirit, to fulfil its tasks as the vanguard of the new democratic revolution of India, as a contingent of the international proletariat.

Since 2004, and more so after the Congress, the PLGA took major strides through arduous efforts and carried out heroic raids and ambushes. It advanced from company level formations, is taking initial steps in forming battalions, and improved its capacity of command and coordination of its primary, secondary and base forces. This has allowed it to attack and completely annihilate the Indian state's mercenary para-military forces, in general at the platoon level, and in particular at the company level in the Mukaram battle. It has built up a broad People's Militia, numbering in the thousands. This has been instrumental in defeating counter-revolutionary vigilante groups such as the Salwa Judum and Sendra, etc. where the enemy tries to 'turn the people against the people'. The People's Militia and the revolutionary masses have also been of great importance in the PLGA's successes in major battles.

This period also gave important lessons in revolutionary mass struggles and co-ordination between armed and mass struggles. We must particularly note that this was done under conditions where almost all open mass organisations linked to our party, or even suspected to have relations to it, are banned and its members hunted, murdered or imprisoned. In the midst of this persecution, fully aware that the 'masses are the real creators of history and we communists are mere children', we have persisted in building mass organisations suited to the conditions and mobilising the masses in the hundreds of thousands. We led some major mass struggles that took the form of mass upsurges. New forms of struggle and organisation emerged, such as those in Lalgah and Narayanpatna. Conducive ground was laid for the consolidation of an anti-feudal, anti-imperialist front. In many other parts of the country big struggles broke out where the masses came forward to defend their land. They fought against plans to displace them for the sake of opening big mines, dams and other pro-imperialist, pro-ruling class projects. We supported these struggles and led some of them. This gave us rich experiences in leading mass struggles, uniting a wide variety of forces. These struggles brought out the leading role of the party and the people's war it leads. They were of immense help in extending the war zones and expanding the party and the PLGA through winning over new forces.

Another important arena of struggle is gradually expanding inside the prisons. Several thousands are in jail. Several Central and District and sub-jails in about 20 States have reverberated with the hunger strikes, at times indefinite, on the demands of political prisoners. Through their activities our comrades in jail have succeeded in mobilising ordinary prisoners to fight for their rights. Democratic organisations and forces are also playing a key role in this even amid severe countrywide repression. Support activities and struggles demanding release of all political prisoners have spread out across the country and internationally. The solidarity activities you have taken up in support of political prisoners in India were specially important and we cherish them as a glowing example of internationalism.

Over these ten years the party has further developed its capacities in different fields. It has actively engaged in ideological struggle against various deviations within the country and at the international level. It played a key role in the formation and functioning of the Co-ordination Centre of Maoist Parties and Organisations in South Asia (CCOMPOSA).

The party has paid attention to raise its ideological level through systematic study classes and rectification campaigns. Study material and magazines are published in various languages. Special effort was taken to develop study/propaganda material in adivasi languages. Syllabus and texts prepared for basic education were further enriched. These are used in the schools run by the RPCs and for the education of PLGA combatants and members of the mass organisations.

An exceptional contribution of the party is that of arousing the women who are half the sky and developing their capacities in political, organisational, military, cultural and other spheres so that they can lay claim to their share in struggle. Today around 40 percent of the fighting force of the PLGA consists of women, though the percentage varies in various guerrilla zones. Women are commanders at the platoon level and members of company level party committees.

The party has paid a lot of attention to develop revolutionary cultural activities. Mass cultural organisations exist in many States from village to State level. They spread the message of revolution and promote democratic and scientific values through multifarious cultural forms that learn from and develop national, ethnic cultural traditions and styles. They motivate the people to struggle for radical change. Their cultural messages also play the role of an instrument of rectification that attacks the reactionary values of the old society gripping the minds of the masses. These organisations are powerful weapons linking the party with the broad masses. Apart from these mass organisations, armed cultural groups are formed within the PLGA too, at the company and battalion levels.

Most importantly, through the planned work taken up after the formation of the united party, we could expand some guerrilla bases as a transitory step towards the establishment of liberated areas. We succeeded in consolidating Revolutionary People's Committees (RPC) in several villages in these bases. The guerrilla bases enabled us to carry out strategic tasks to further consolidate and expand them to advance the revolutionary war. More people's political power organs emerged in the period after the Congress. In Telengana and Andhra Pradesh several RPCs had been formed in the past. Though there had been a setback in these States, the people who had enjoyed political power are fighting to overcome the situation with that inspiration. In Dandakaranya (Chhattisgarh), several Area level revolutionary people's governments were formed earlier. A few Division (District) level people's governments have also started functioning. This is a new experience in the history of the revolutionary movement in our country. They are placing an alternative political, economic and cultural model in front of the Indian people by rejecting the fake democratic system and the pseudo reforms of the exploiting governments. These people's governments are striving to increase the agricultural production of the people through their cooperative and collective labour while working very hard to march forward to achieve self-sufficiency for the economic development of the people and to support the party and the PLGA. Thus we march forward to realise the central task of our revolution, the seizure of political power through armed struggle.

Following the formation of the united party in 2004, the enemy has redoubled its efforts to destroy the revolution by expanding the US imperialism guided 'Low Intensity Conflict' strategy to the entire country. It now acknowledges us as the 'greatest threat' to its security.

Through this strategy the enemy has paid special effort to attack and destroy our leadership. As you know it has succeeded in this to a significant extent, causing heavy losses. In 2009 it launched its even more ruthless, intensive and extensive suppression strategy, the 'Operation Green Hunt', the notorious 'War on the People'. A grand plan was prepared to wipe us out, employing fascist methods. Huge forces, including special forces, were trained and concentrated. Thousands of crores of rupees were spent. Massive propaganda targeting us as anti-development and a bunch of terrorists was carried out. Intense combing operations, surprise attacks on our forces, attacks on our mass base in the war zones were conducted by mobilising a huge number of forces in every operation. Large scale arrests of activists of all people's organisations in rural and urban areas and militia in all guerrilla zones, burning and destruction of houses, properties and crops, mass murder of people and mass raping of womenfolk and killing and taking away a large number of livestock had become a routine one, fake encounter killings continued, destruction of our urban networks, destruction of the infrastructure built up through the collective labour of the masses were combined with reform activities meant to sidetrack the people. In the face of this fascist onslaught we did suffer serious losses. Led by the Central Committee, the whole party, PLGA, People's Militia and revolutionary masses led by the RPCs and mass organisations, stood firm, learnt from our mistakes, redoubled efforts and hit back. Simultaneously we waged a political battle. We struck back exposing the enemy's propaganda. This paved the way for a favourable political polarisation within the country. Progressives and democratic forces came forward along with revolutionaries to denounce the enemy's Operation Green Hunt as a 'War on the People'. Internationally too a broad movement came up to build world public opinion against this assault of the Indian state. This reaffirms the capacity of our ideology to counter the enemy's psychological war and gives us rich lessons.

In the wake of the severe mauling they suffered at the hands of the PLGA in a few tactical offensives where they were wiped out in large numbers, the enemy started taking up operations with even larger forces. The enemy who was successful in damaging the leadership and cadre in the urban and plain areas is now targeting the leadership in forest areas. The enemy has already engaged its 500,000 Central and State troops in these war zones and is planning to increase it by several thousands. Drones are employed. The Air Force is involved in a supportive role and the Army is being readied.

Facing these attacks the PLGA has gained rich experiences in battling and breaking the enemy's 'cordon and search' campaigns, deploying at times a force of 10,000. The PLGA, with the full support of the people and with exemplary initiative, bravely fought hour long battles, even for three days, to break the enemy's cordon and successfully defeated its plans to capture leadership comrades. PLGA forces and people's militia also fought back the tactics of the enemy of deploying the police and paramilitary forces through helicopters by firing on and damaging them with ordinary rifles.

While the tightening blockades, combing and attacks brought out the steel in the vast majority of our ranks, it has also exposed the rotten elements that had remained hidden among us. Liquidationists who pretend that protracted people's war is not suited to our conditions, cowards who flee under different pretexts hopelessly trying to cover up their defeatism, traitors who sell out the people for the pittance thrown to them by the enemy – these trying times have uncovered them, one after the other. Among the masses some have "surrendered" under enemy brute force. Repeated and heavy attacks have caused great harm to the party structures in the villages and consequently to the RPCs and mass organisations too. A section of the masses have become passive.

In the first quarter of 2013, assessing the situation we face, the Central Committee had noted that the weaknesses in our subjective condition were uneven. It assessed that our countrywide movement is facing a very difficult condition. The reasons for this situation to arise are both objective and subjective. The Indian ruling classes, with the complete support and guidance of the imperialists, have launched an unprecedented multi-pronged countrywide strategic offensive to suppress our developing movement. We suffered some losses, lost some ground temporarily while withdrawing in the face of superior forces. The other reason for this is subjective, the mistakes we made in rising up to the demands of changing conditions of the revolutionary war and leading the PLGA and people, continuing remnants of non-proletarian tendencies in ourselves and failure in avoiding serious losses. The Central Committee has formulated the basic tactics to overcome this situation. It issued a call to Bolshevise the party aimed at becoming capable of overcoming the present difficult condition and achieving it by educating the entire party in MLM, political and military line and basic policies, tactics, style of work of the party and fighting style of the PLGA, lessons learnt from practice, rectifying its mistakes and shortcomings and thus strengthening the party, PLGA and mass base and paving the way to advance the movement. Whatever may be the situation, we have a mighty weapon to tackle it. This is our ideology, MLM. Grasping it deeply and taking up this weapon ever more firmly; this is the crux of Bolshevising the party. This campaign is going on and the party and all the forces led by it are striving to develop their capacities to defeat the enemy's onslaught.

During the past 15 months we put efforts to preserve our movement and leadership amid intensified enemy offensive. In the recent period the PLGA, with the support of the people, conducted tactical counter-offensive campaigns and several armed actions, annihilated enemy forces and seized arms and ammunitions. Thousands of people and people's militia led by the PLGA destroyed road building equipment, vehicles, guest houses, and camp offices of the government and the big construction and mining companies. Along with starting Bolshevisation campaign in the entire party, PLGA mass organisation and United Front organisations, we could achieve some positive experiences in some parts and extend into some new strategic areas. We are striving hard for revival of the movement in some of the areas from where we had to retreat. In areas where we have weakened the party is trying to face the situation with Bolshevik spirit. Facing heavy odds and losses, we are opening up a new war front in the Sahyadri (Western Ghats) border region of Karnataka-Keralam-Tamilnadu.

Our party's efforts to rally the vast masses in both secret and open forms against the pro-imperialist policies that served the interests of the ruling classes implemented by the Central and State governments continued. Thousands of people held rallies and vented their ire demanding the withdrawal of the Central and State forces. They protested fake encounters, massacres, illegal arrests and atrocities on women, attacks on villages, loot and destruction of people's properties and demanded the release of political prisoners. Revolutionary land reforms and people's welfare programmes were conducted by RPCs by mobilising the masses and PLGA also participated in these programs. The capture and execution of the hated Mahendra Karma, the main person responsible for the brutal Salwa Judum atrocities was a major achievement. Responding to the call of the party the people in rural Dandakaranya (DK) boycotted the Chhattisgarh assembly and parliament elections and some rural areas of Bihar, Jharkand, Odisha and Andhra-Odisha Border (AOB) people successfully boycotted parliamentary elections by resisting thousands of additional state forces and their brutal suppression. In areas where movements of adivasi peoples against mining and displacement are going on, majority of the people boycotted the Loksabha polls and expressed their protest against these destructive projects.

As part of the election boycott campaign the PLGA forces successfully conducted tactical counter-offensive actions on the enemy forces that came to force people to vote in most of the war zones of Central and Eastern India. Some of these actions took place in areas which the enemy had claimed to have 'cleared' and taken control of. Within the first five months of 2014, spanning the election period, 63 enemy forces were annihilated and 122 injured in 31 actions. One PLGA combatant was martyred in these offensives. We could seize 36 weapons and 3366 rounds. It is noteworthy that these actions came in the wake of and during two massive country-wide special 'cordon and search campaigns' conducted by the enemy. Through guerrilla actions conducted constantly by the PLGA in the various guerrilla zones the enemy forces had to disperse their forces in a vast area and so were forced into a situation where they could not deploy their forces as they wish in our crucial areas. Due to lack of additional forces the enemy couldn't carry out these campaigns more intensively in all areas at once except in Bijapur (DK) and some other parts of the country.

New forms of struggle are being developed to counter the enemy's 'carpet-security' strategic network where heavily fortified camps with hundreds of troops are put up at short distances of 2 to 6 km from each other, steadily encircling our guerrilla bases and other war zones. In two instances, the masses, along with the PLGA or on their own with its support, have engaged in armed harassment or besieged such camps for days together and forced their shut down. The role of women in these struggles was exemplary. We have also seen instances where the masses either rejected the free goods distributed by the enemy mercenaries as part of Civic Action Programs or made a bonfire of them.

In this period an important achievement in last 15 months was the merger into one party of CPI (Maoist) and CPI (M-L) NAXALBARI. This was another turning point in the effort to achieve unity of genuine revolutionaries in our country. As pointed out in the merger declaration, this gives a boost to the capacity of our party to better fulfil its role as the vanguard of the Indian revolution. The unity of Maoists in the face of intense enemy attack has greatly encouraged our entire party, PLGA and the revolutionary masses. It has been enthusiastically welcomed at the international level too.

Overall the situation we face is still very difficult. But we are firmly holding on, boldly facing up to it, and pushing forward to overcome it. Needless to say, the solidarity you extend immensely helps us in this task. We are glad to see that you agree with us on the need to vigorously take forward the campaign to end Operation Green Hunt. This campaign and the solidarity movement in support of people's war in India complement each other. Defeating this counterrevolutionary multi-pronged countrywide offensive of the enemy is an immediate task before us.

Every revolution advances in a wave-like manner. That is a law of history. In times of difficulties we should heighten our ideological level, keep politics in command, take the message of revolution deeper and wider among the masses, creatively apply the line of protracted people's war and develop our tactics, be 'red and expert' in our political, military, organisational, propaganda, training, cultural, production, technical and other tasks, be more determined, dedicated and ready for sacrifice. Only thus can we emerge from this situation more united, more disciplined, courageous, stronger, more consolidated and more dynamic. This is the lesson we learn from the great revolutions of our class, summed up in the teachings of our great teachers. They have also taught us the need to reforge our ties with the masses on a deeper and higher level at each turn of the revolutionary war. At each crucial juncture the task of deepening the politicisation of not only ourselves but simultaneously the politicisation of the masses also poses itself afresh. We resolutely take up this task to unleash the revolutionary energy and initiative of the masses in an even more powerful manner.

Such is the brief account of our successes and failures, of the people's war in India, over the past ten years. Such is the main way we have been contributing to the advance of the world socialist revolution.

Comrades,

During the past decade a number of important developments have taken place at the international level. We wish to draw your attention to some salient features.

The initial years of the last decade saw huge outpourings of the masses against globalisation policies that destroyed their lives and a strengthening of people's wars and armed liberation struggles. The ideology of the proletariat was more sharply posed through the establishment of Marxism-Leninism-Maoism. Its wider adoption strengthened the grounds for closer unity among Maoist forces, internationally and in different countries. Stirrings of a new wave of revolution could be seen in the world. Mainly in response to this, imperialism, particularly US imperialism initiated and launched a massive, worldwide counter-revolutionary offensive, directed against the people. This was the main content of the so-called 'War on Terrorism' which all imperialists and reactionaries joined or supported. Wars of aggression against Afghanistan and Iraq, curtailment of democratic rights, attacks on people's struggles, growing fascistisation throughout the world, step up of suppressive campaigns against armed struggles, people's wars and Maoist parties — such were its main features. But the arrogance of US imperialism, the sole superpower soon got soundly rebuffed. The challenge was met. A worldwide struggle emerged against the war on Iraq and continued after the launch of the war. Powerful resistance in Iraq and Afghanistan bogged down the aggressors and upset their plans. Masses throughout the world refused to be cowed down and continued their struggles against the ravages of globalisation, liberalisation and privatisation. People's wars continued to advance. As a result of all these factors, US imperialism was forced to change tactics within a few years. Bush was replaced with Obama. Talk of 'decades of war' was replaced with hurried plans for disengagement and withdrawal of troops. This is a stark indicator of the favourable situation that has emerged in the world. This period also saw a growth in the contention between imperialist powers as Russian imperialism began to assert itself in the context of the US getting bogged down.

As we all know, the global crisis of the imperialist system that broke out in 2008 has further exacerbated the situation world over. In both imperialist and oppressed countries, millions took to the streets and fought pitched battles with reactionary state forces, workers seized factories, masses occupied squares and shut down governments. Students, youth, women, workers, immigrants, pensioners — all have come out in struggle. The heady days of the Arab Spring are still live in our memories. Several hated dictatorships were brought down by the persistent struggles of the people. This blooming of the masses didn't arrive at realising their aspirations for a genuine democracy, exploitation free system and people's rule. But it has stirred up these societies in a deep way. It gave hope to the world peoples. The results will surely appear.

This is the world today. It shows a situation of great potential for a powerful new wave of revolution. But there is another side to this, a bitter side, one of betrayal. Once again in the history of the international communist movement revisionism has blocked it from gaining the most of a favourable situation. The betrayal of the people's war in Nepal by the CPN (Maoist) leadership, particularly the Prachanda-Bhattarai clique, was the most damaging of its acts. The possibility of forcing the enemies of the people to drop their guise as saviours of democracy fighting obscurantist fanatics and bringing them into direct confrontation with a revolutionary people, of raising the banners of a people's war led by Maoists as a rallying centre against imperialism and reaction, of winning over broad sections of the people to the cause of communism, was destroyed. From another end we see a liquidationist attack on our ideology that seeks to pull down the banners of a MLM and replace it with the hollow claims of Avakianism. This has already destroyed some Maoist parties, who once had an honourable place in the ranks of the ICM. Both of these deviations have been confronted by the Maoists and the struggle continues. Efforts are on to consolidate Maoist parties and build new ones. But the loss is evident. There is a considerable drop in the subjective forces of world proletarian revolution, caused not by enemy suppression, but by the enemies emerging from within it.

Thus we see the contradiction, the glaring gap between the potential of the objective situation and the subjective capacities of the Maoist forces. This is what we must confront. All our activities must be directed to overcome it. This is the deepest need of the oppressed and exploited throughout the world, the demand of these times. As Mao would say, "We must seize the hour, seize the time". Our party believes that it is the need of the hour for the communist forces to strive to mobilise the broadest possible anti-imperialist, democratic and revolutionary forces to strengthen the campaign to end OGH and with a view to build a broad worldwide anti-imperialist front that is in process. And the further strengthening of the unity of communist forces world over would lead to stronger support for the Indian Revolution too.

In the present situation, the objective potential of the world situation is far outstripping the subjective capacities of the individual parties. Yet much can be done to win over a large section to the cause of communism through their united effort. The recent years have seen collective activities in the form of joint May Day statements, seminars on important developments, conferences of Maoist parties for summing up experiences of international organisation and strengthening the struggle against neo-revisionism, joint forums such as the International Support Committee organising this Conference and the solidarity activities it has initiated. We have welcomed these efforts and continue to support them. We must now explore the possibilities of making the closer ties born out of these activities and growing unity of thinking on ideological, political issues the basis for further advance.

Just as the Indian revolution serves the world proletarian revolution so too is its future vitally linked to how best the Maoists throughout the world can make the most of the world situation and advance world revolution. We take confidence from the burning desire for revolution expressed in the proceedings of the Hamburg Conference, seen in its motto that advancing the revolution in our respective countries is the best way of expressing solidarity to similar revolutions in other countries.

Our party which carries forward the legacy of Naxalbari had always considered the new democratic revolution that we are waging in India as an integral part of the world socialist revolution, the party a vanguard contingent of the world proletariat. The invaluable and incredible sacrifices that are being done by the people and comrades in our revolution are also an integral part of the great sacrifices done by innumerable beloved martyrs of world socialist revolution in each and every country.

Finally, before we conclude, we wish to speak about the great efforts you are doing in support of the people's war in India. The news of your campaigns, its vivid images, are being taken to our ranks, PLGA combatants and revolutionary masses as widely as possible through our open and secret magazines and several other means. When they know that their sisters and brothers in far off lands stand up in militant solidarity with them, when they see images of protests before Indian embassies, of wall writings taking the message of their revolution to masses in those countries, their hearts swell with pride — we are not alone, our people are there, we are everywhere. Your acts have inspired us; they have made us more determined. We will strive our utmost to fulfil the confidence you have reposed in us. Our future, the future of the world revolution, the future of the world proletariat, oppressed nations and oppressed people is certainly bright but the path is a thorny, arduous and full of zigzags. The future of our enemies, the imperialists and their lackeys the world over, is dark and their doom is inevitable.

Report of the International Committee to Support People's War in India

In India a tumultuous people's war develops against imperialism, bureaucratic capitalism, the comprador bourgeoisie and feudalism.

The people's war started in the areas where the roots of the revolt against poverty, capitalist and tribal exploitation are deeper, and where the contradictions produced by the development made of looting of resources, caste oppression and exploitation by a capitalism tied and subservient to imperialism are sharper.

This people's war continues the epic story of the extraordinary peasant armed uprising in Naxalbari. With the unification of Maoists, heirs of Naxalbari, in the formation of the Communist Party of India (Maoist), the PW found a new level of guide, leadership and program.

The 10 years since from this formation showed the strength of armed masses led by a Maoist communist party; thanks to the leadership of this party, the People's War has spread across the country and has built its bases in about a third of it. Thus, the PW has become the main internal threat to the Indian regime and imperialism in a crucial region of the world. This PW that has spread his message and his strength among the oppressed masses of the world.

This is the ground of the birth of the International Committee, the development of the support to the PW that was extended to many countries, through both unified campaigns and other independent initiatives. This reached a milestone with 1st International Conference in Hamburg, organized by the Committee and the League Against the Imperialist Aggression (BGIA).

Especially after that Conference, the movement of support to the PW and the ICSPWI have also become a danger for the Indian regime and imperialism. They are taking steps to urge other governments to stop this solidarity and support and to hit those who turn them into an organized form of a potential powerful movement that is developing step by step.

The Indian regime unleashed the most fierce repression against struggling people. The massive Operation Green Hunt is a veritable manhunt in which the poor people who rebel in India are treated as animals to be exterminated. It is a multi-pronged countrywide offensive launched the Indian regime against its own people, using extensively super armed troops, now even drones, police and paramilitary forces, which sow terror and genocide in the villages, with raids, deportations, mass killings and rapes.

The target of this repression is the CPI (Maoist), its cadres, leaders, members, sympathizers, not only in the areas of struggle but also within cities, in the universities and among all classes and social sectors which support or sympathize with the PW, the Maoist rebellion, the armed uprising of the masses.

In order to conduct this Operation, the Indian regime had to gradually drop the mask of "the largest democracy in the world" and put the command in the hands of a new Hindu fascist regime, the Modi's new regime. The revolution always engenders a powerful counter-revolution, that today strikes indiscriminately seeking to wipe out any political opposition in India.

In the past week, the Modi's regime unleashed the repression not only against the PW, the People's Army, but also against the Forum for a Alternative Politics. As Com. Varavara Rao said: "the Modi government is planning to launch a full-scale war against Maoist rebels and the people led by them ... building a war-hysteria against Maoist rebels ... at the behest of some big corporate bodies who want to control and plunder our resources."

But more repression, more oppression, only feed the movement of rebellion and the opposition itself. Hitting the Forum, the government shows its strategic and class weakness, in front of those who say "The people are with us. They will definitely welcome our initiative as we are promoting self-rule and more powers to landless and oppressed sections of society."

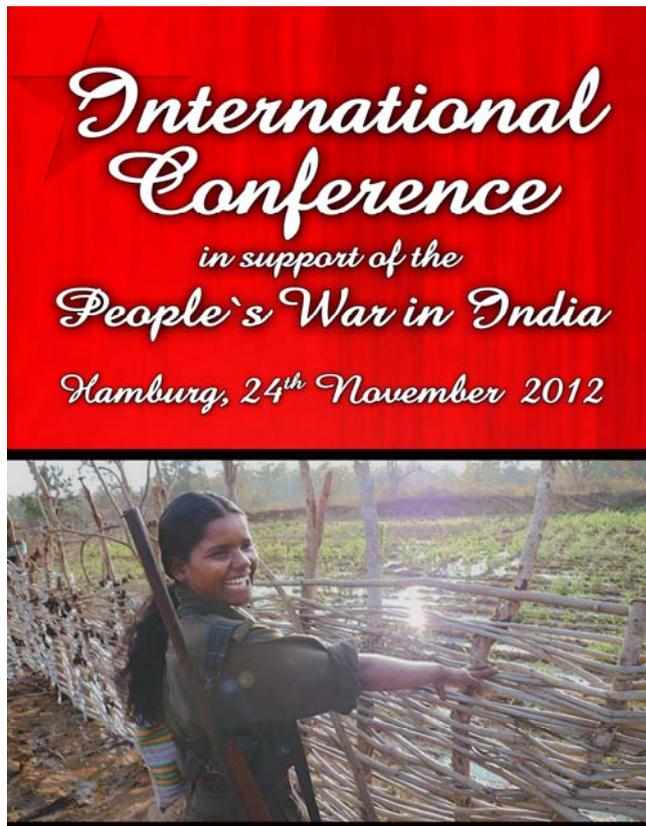

The International Committee of Support to the PW in India expresses the strongest solidarity with Com. Varavara Rao and the participants in the Forum for an Alternative Politics, it demands their immediate release and calls to all revolutionary, anti-imperialist and progressive forces in the world to develop initiatives for a political mobilization.

The repression can not stop the great celebrations of the 10th anniversary, because it can not stop the advance of the people and their vanguard.

We want quote here the answer of Arundhati Roy to a reporter who asked her what is difference between the Maoists and the people, referring to the areas in which the people's war and the mass movement led by Maoists develop. Arundhati replied: "None. Maoists and people are the same thing. "

The development of the support to the PW has to bring to the masses not only the strength of the armed initiatives of People's Army but also the nature of people's movements led by the party, and involved in and inspired by the PW, as well as what the People's Revolutionary Committees achieve in areas where the PW formed them.

The armed struggle develops in the forests, in the countryside, as armed resistance to the raids to destroy villages and deport the villagers. Without this resistance, villages and villagers would be wiped out, in a contention in which the development of capitalism is asserted and the right to exist of people is denied.

As we wrote in the founding call of ICSPWI: "Indian masses led by the CPI (M) are writing a historic page in the current clash of classes in the world. We have to help to make clear for the world proletariat that the advancement of the PW in India put into question the balance of power not only in South Asia but in the whole structure of the world imperialist system.

The International Committee develops as a centre of action and propaganda in which, step by step, those who want to support the PW can take part both in a unitary and unified or a coordinated way. The increasing extension of the campaigns in about 60 countries shows the international role of the Committee. International Campaigns and Days of Actions have the purpose to give everyone a chance to participate and join the support.

The imperialist system is not able to get out of its worst crisis since the 30s. All attempts to deal with and overcome the crisis fail, because the crisis itself originates from the very functioning of the imperialist system today. On the world scene, even in the crisis we witness a widening gap between the wealth of a handful of imperialist countries and the poverty of three-quarters of humanity in the countries oppressed by imperialism, the wealth in the hands of the bourgeoisie and the absolute and relative impoverishment of the proletariat and the masses in the imperialist countries. And, in countries as India, the overflowing richness of a parasitic comprador bureaucratic bourgeoisie and the conditions of misery and hunger in which the masses live.

For this reason, the PW is well inside the response of the peoples to this situation and the crisis of the system; and it is this that the PW is the objective and subjective spearhead of the struggle of the oppressed masses in the world. Therefore, the support is not mere solidarity but participation in this global war against imperialism.

The 10th anniversary shows that where the guide of the people's rebellion is a communist party, the rebellion of the masses is not prey and pawn of inter-imperialistic contention, it is not in the hands of the feudal reactionary forces who ride the rebellion to channel it in the plans of ruling classes or even to push back the wheel of history. Therefore, the support for the PW is also a way to help to assert this trend everywhere the rebellion of the people goes on.

We can properly understand the importance of the PW and the reasons to support it if we see it in the context of the international situation.

In the analysis of the world today, on the one hand, the inter-imperialist contradictions that can lead to a third world war, become sharper, on the other hand the factors of the revolution are nourished and the principal contradiction in the world today emerges clearly. The PW in India becomes objectively an indispensable point of reference to be placed inside the main contradiction and the main trend in the world today.

The Committee to support the PW will not reduce its action to the exposure of the Indian regime, although it is also an essential and crucial part of its activities, but it works to rise the awareness and recognition of the ground of class and anti-imperialist unity existing between India and the countries in which the Committee operates.

In India, the government has decided to sell the natural and human resources of the country to the western imperialist multinationals, to new monopolies of the masters of automotive and steel plants, such as Tata, Essar, Jindal, Mittal. From the fierce exploitation of workers, often women and children, they draw the profits that allow them to become buyers and shareholders of the big international monopolies in the respective sector, in alliance with the owners in the imperialist countries.

On this base, the unity among the workers in the imperialist countries and the workers and oppressed masses in India can and must be developed.

Through actions, information, the Committee has an important role to play.

The war on people in the heart of India and the rise of the Fascist Hindu regime fills the country of rapes. Rapes on women guerrillas, women of the people, in the war; as well as serial rapes in the false modernized big cities, in the universities, etc.

The struggle of women in India and the participation of women in the PW make their movement in India an inspiration for women in all countries in the world. And the ICSPWI will help to gather more and more the powerful forces of this movement.

The PW in India is bound to change the face of the second most populous country in the world, to embody the spirit of changing that inspires the rebel youth in many countries around the world, including the imperialist citadels. To spread the achievements, the lessons, the nature of the conflict in India, between state repression and armed rebellion of people, is a source and a stimulus to give an actually revolutionary orientation to rebellion of youth.

In this sense the line, the practice of ICSPWI is much more than an organization of solidarity. It is a weapon and an added value for all communist, revolutionary, anti-imperialist forces in the world.

This is the base of unity, reached in full autonomy, with the PW in India, with the CPI (Maoist), of which we celebrate the 10th anniversary.

This meeting is a step on this path, that can not be stopped and we all together have to move forward serving the liberation of the proletariat and peoples.

It is important to assert this while in India, every day, our martyrs, the best sons and daughters of people, our comrades, fall down. But from the heart of that country, however, the voice of their message resounds in the voice and message of the CPI (Maoist): "Finally, before we conclude, we wish to speak about the great efforts you are doing in support of the people's war in India. The news of your campaigns, its vivid images, are being taken to our ranks, PLGA combatants and revolutionary masses as widely as possible through our open and secret magazines and several other means. When they know that their sisters and brothers in far off lands stand up in militant solidarity with them, when they see images of protests before Indian embassies, of wall writings taking the message of their revolution to masses in those countries, their hearts swell with pride — we are not alone, our people are there, we are everywhere. Your acts have inspired us; they have made us more determined. We will strive our utmost to fulfil the confidence you have reposed in us."

And we can say from this meeting that our action will be at the height of that message!

Speech of the Revolutionary Front to Defend the People's Rights - Brazil*

Dear comrades,

We warmly salute the organizers of this event to celebrate the 10th anniversary of the formation of the Communist Party of India (Maoist) [CPI(M)] and in support of the people's war in India.

We warmly salute all the democratic and revolutionary parties and organizations attending here.

We warmly salute the international proletariat and all the Maoist parties leading people's wars or are preparing themselves to initiate the same process of struggle.

We warmly salute the CPI(M), the Central Committee, all the leaders, cadres, members, the commanders and fighters of the Heroic PLGA and all the masse of Indian people. In the last 10 years, under the leadership of CPI(M) the people's war in India achieved important advances, that are examples for the exploited masses in the world and a solid foothold for the world proletarian revolution. The message of the CC oh CPI (Maoist) to this conference confirms the importance of the work of Maoists in India and the advance of People's War.

We respectfully also remember the martyrs of the people's war in India, the leaders Azad and Kishenji, brutally murdered by the Indian State and imperialism and other members of CC and party member at level of State, Area, Sub-Area and District and Village Party Committees, the members of the PLGA and the United Front brutally murdered by the Indian State and imperialism, as well as all the martyrs who sacrificed their lives to accomplish their revolutionary tasks all around the world. As our loved comrade Renato, murdered by police and landlords forces the 9th April 2012. In front of the example of these comrades, we pay our most hart-felt and proletarian homage and respect their memory. We are aware that without sacrifices communist parties will not be able to go ahead in the revolutionary war.

We salute also all the political prisoners and revolutionary war prisoners in the world, who fight from the jails of enemy to transform them into shining trenches of combat. In this occasion we want assert again the defence of live of Abimael Guzman, the chairman Gonzalo of PCP and stress the importance of his speech from the jail, made on 24th September 1992, 22 years ago. We also extend our salute to the liberation armed struggles in Iraq, Afghanistan, Kurdistan and the heroic Palestine and also all the people's masses who upsurge and fight against imperialists and reactionaries in their countries.

To hold this meeting and celebrate the 10th Anniversary of the formation of CPI(M), in a moment in which imperialism suffers the most serious systemic crisis in the history, as part of its unsolvable structural crisis, that is sharpening all the contradictions in the world, is an important initiative for the international proletariat.

The main contradiction is that between imperialist powers and oppressed people an nations. The masses all around the world intensify their struggle against their enemies. To develop campaigns of support and solidarity with the people's war in India an internationalist duty. It a way to show the masses in our countries and in the world that the only path to advance to their liberation is the people's war.

Long live proletarian Internationalism!
Long live the 10th anniversary of CPI(M)!
All support to the People's War in India
Dare to fight dare to win!
Down with the imperialist war!
Long live People's War!

Speech of the Communist Party of Turkey / Marxist-Leninist (TKP/ML)

The Only Force in India that Can Lead The Oppressed People to Liberation is the Communist Party of India (Maoist)

Comrades,

As TKP/ML we salute the 10th Anniversary of the Communist Party of India (Maoist) with sincere revolutionary feelings.

The unification of the Indian communists under the umbrella of the CPI(Maoist) has strengthened the revolution struggle in India. The reactionary Indian bourgeois feared this unity of communists the most. The unity of communists, has given the oppressed toilers and nations in the country and increased their confidence in revolution. The regions under the control of the CPI(Maoist) now having attained more stronger leadership offer greater opportunities for the advancement of the revolution.

Comrades,

The areas where the inter-imperialist contradictions and the fights arising from these contradictions are felt the most are the Middle-East and the Caucasus.

Although it may seem as if the crisis of the imperialist system of 2008 entered a stasis, the crisis has not been overcome entirely. The crisis has been very costly to the system. The increasing unemployment and poverty in the centre of the crisis, the US, has impacted a great portion of the workers. The economic crisis emerging in the US has impacted the EU severely, strongly impacting Greece, Portugal, Spain Italy and similar countries, even leading some to bankruptcy.

The crisis that affected all the countries of the imperialist system also continues to escalate the inter-imperialist contradictions. The rivalry between the US-UK, Russia, Shanghai Cooperation Organization and the EU and Japan is continuing in the most hard way.

The geographies that the imperialists fight about the most are mainly the Caucasus and the Middle-East.

In Ukraine the US and the EU are jointly fighting against Russia. Ukraine has been on the menu with the US and EU for some time now. Besides the fact that this is a large market, is the fact that it is on the route of energy recourses increases the importance. The effort of the EU to overtake Ukraine, supported by the US, seems to be evolving in Russia's favour with the counter move Russia developed. The annexation of Crimea, which was a part of Ukraine, through the so-called referendum, has frustrated the plans of the US and EU imperialists. While the fights between the pro-Russian separatists and the Ukrainian government, the pro Russia troops, which hold many parts in Donetsk and Lugansk in the eastern parts of Ukraine, during the last NATO meeting, new implementation against Russia were discussed, Russia with its peace agreement with Ukraine was able to frustrate this plan.

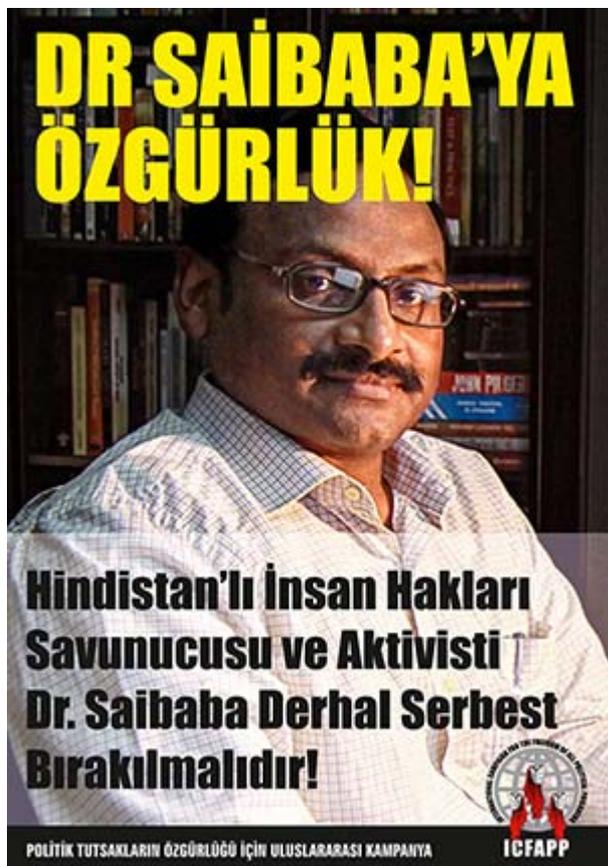

The Middle-East being a region with its rich oil recourses, gas and being a large market has never dropped from the agenda of the imperialists. The implementation of the Great Middle-Eastern Project of the US and the occupation of Iraq in 2003 as a part of this plan the Middle-East has been turned into a complete blood bath. The regime changes in Libya after Iraq, then in Egypt and lastly with the addition of Syria the balance have thoroughly changed. With Russia and Iran backing up the Assad regime and the civil war being carried till now, is the continuation of the stage of the failure by the US and western imperialists to overthrow the Assad regime.

Following the withdrawal of the US military troops out of Iraq in 2011, and the return to Iraq within three years, a new era began with the IS fed and developed within the civil war in Syria and with the seizure of Mosul by the IS.

During the NATO meeting on 4th September in England, the agenda points that were discussed Ukraine and Iraq, were based on the plans on how Russia was on how to lower the influence of Russia in Ukraine and how to regain control over Iraq again.

The process that started with the seizure of Mosul by IS, with so-called humanitarian grounds being put forward, regaining the control over Iraq, are nothing more than the plan of the imperialists to re-design the Middle-East. The imperialist care not about any human drama or massacre. The imperialist who remained silent in the face of the massacres committed by the IS on behalf of the imperialists, the inhumane attacks on the Kurds of Rojava, the attacks on the Ezidi's in Shengal and the displacement of hundreds of thousands of people, have decided to intervene against the IS when their own interest were at jeopardy in Iraq.

The US and Western European imperialists are now searching for armies that will wage war against the IS in Iraq on their behalf. The decision to supply weapons to the Peshmerga in Iraqi Kurdistan is exactly a part of this game. The imperialist being the cause for the problem cannot be the mediator for the solution. The peoples of the Middle-East should disrupt this imperialist game together. All progressive and revolutionary forces should join forces against the IS monster and should fight against this reactionary organization and against imperialism.

In this process of the redesigning of the world by the imperialists, those most impacted by this are the oppressed nations and toilers. Every day thousands of migrants die on the open seas or are struggling on roads for life and death. The hundreds of thousands migrants who survive and come to European countries are forced to live under the worst conditions. Racist attack, humiliate and kill migrants wherever they can.

Semi-colonial countries continue to be plundered by imperialist countries. Cheap labour, subcontracting, poverty, work-related accidents are presented as if they are the faith of these countries.

Africa is fighting poverty and hunger. The gradual spread of the Ebola outbreak faces mass deaths in many African countries. Imperialist monopolies refuse to produce and give medicine to these countries as they do not have the funds to by these and it does not produce any profit.

The ecological balance of the world that is deteriorating due to the greed for profit bears the risk of the world becoming uninhabitable in the next few decades. All these are the results of the endless thirst for profit by the imperialists. As long as there is an imperialist system, exploitation, war and the slaughter of people will continue.

Revolution is the only way for the oppressed nations and toilers to rid themselves from the imperialist exploitation and repression. The working class in semi-colonial, dependent, imperialist and capitalist countries have no liberation but socialism.

What frightens the imperialists most are the countries where People's Wars are waged. Genuine anti-imperialist struggle today is those struggles waged with People's Wars. The importance of the People's War in India is that it aims for true liberation. The People's War in India led by the CPI(Maoist) is the reason for the fear of the Indian reactionary bourgeoisie and their masters imperialists. The attack on communists under the name of Operation Green Hunt, the killing of cadres of the CPI(Maoist), the brutal treatment of hundreds of thousands of political prisoners and the abductions of intellectuals such as Sai Baba are expressions of this fear.

The support for the People's War in India in the world must be stronger than it was before. The adoption of the People's War in India will increase the longing for socialism. The communists of India are not alone. As long as they have friends and comrades around the world, the Indian revolution will continue to advance.

LONG LIVE CPI(MAOIST)
LONG LIVE PEOPLE'S WAR
LONG LIVE PROLETARIAN INTERNATIONALISM
DOWN WITH IMPERIALISM, FACISM AND ALL SORTS OF REACTION

27 September 2014
TKP/ML International Bureau

Speech of Bloc Rouge (Unification of Maoists, France)

We would greet of this new international conference to support the people's war in India. The organization of a true front of solidarity with the Indian Maoist movement is a priority from the point of view of proletarian internationalism.

For over 40 years, Indian Maoists have been carrying out the people's war against the semi-colonial and semi-feudal system in India. With the poor and landless peasants, Adivasi (tribal people), Dalits (untouchable), women, workers, in short, with any and all exploited and oppressed people in the country, Maoists develop the struggle against the capitalist-imperialist system. By establishing People's Governments, they ensure that the masses stand up and take their own future in their hands.

The 1st of May this year was a great day. On this day the merger the CPI (Maoist) and CPI (ML) Naxalbari culminated. This change brings many great new prospects for the development of people's war in India.

We will salute the 10th anniversary of the formation of the CPI (Maoist). Indian Maoist movement is one of the spearheads of the world revolution. That People's War is a hope not only for the masses in India, but also for workers all around the world, who see the possibility of reconstructing a genuine socialist country internationally.

The CPI (Maoist) and the People's War in India show us the path of revolution. Indeed, the theory of people's war is not, as someone thinks, a Chinese application of the path of revolution or a mere military strategy in semi-feudal and semi-colonial countries. The People's War is a universal principle of Maoism, applicable everywhere, even in the imperialist countries as France. Leading the people's war in India, the CPI (Maoist) paves the road to the revolutionaries worldwide.

For us, to celebrate the 10th anniversary of the formation of the CPI (Maoist) is not just a matter of principle, but a commitment of solidarity.

Today more than ever we have to revive proletarian internationalism and support people's war in India. It means to to inform working class in France about the development of the revolution in India and also to attack the heart of our own imperialism with any necessary mean. We have realized many solidarity actions. We held several public meetings in different cities of France and a concert. We supported the Indian prisoners on the International Day in support of political prisoners. Many pamphlets were distributed in the poor neighborhoods of different cities and various actions were realized, such as a paint attack on the headquarters of the Michelin, to protest against the opening of factories in the lands of the Indian peasants.

Moreover, the international support to the people's war in India is considered a threat by the Indian State, that after the International Conference in Hamburg urged the governments of different countries in Europe to stop it. Now we know that the Government of India tries to attack directly the movement of solidarity with the people's war in India in European countries both through diplomatic channels and the secret services.

While the Indian bourgeoisie can rely on the support of imperialist powers in Europe, the Indian Maoists are not alone. They can rely on the support of genuine revolutionary parties and organizations and, more importantly, of the broad masses. It is in this spirit that we are committed to further support the Indian revolution. In doing this, above all, we take up the tasks pending on the Maoist movement in France, that is, essentially, to achieve the unification of the Maoists in a qualitatively and quantitatively higher party.

It also means to strengthen our solidarity with the Maoist movement in India. It is in this sense that we are carrying out the campaign of solidarity with the people's war in India as one of the main axes of our work at the moment and we will significantly intensify our campaign of actions and information, propaganda, to achieve the emergence among our people of a broad support with the just struggle of the CPI (Maoist) through the People's War.

Down with the French Imperialism!
Stop Operation Green Hunt !
Glory to the 10th Anniversary CPI (Maoist) !
Long live the People's War in India!

Speech of the League Against Imperialist Aggression (BGIA, Hamburg, Germany)

Comrades, friends,

we as the League Against Imperialist Aggression want to express our warmest revolutionary greetings to all the fighters of the peoples liberation movements in the world, to all the masses who resist against their exploitation and oppression by imperialism, as well as to the participants of this meeting. From the bottom of our hearts we greet the leaders and members of the Communist Party of India (Maoist), the PLGA-fighters and the peoples of the New Power. They are a lightning torch and a source of confidence for all Communists, Revolutionaries, Antiimperialists and progressive people in the world.

Throughout their ten-years existence, since the unification of the Maoist Communist Center and the Communist Party of India Marxist-Leninist (People's War), and because of the waging People's War the CPI (Maoist) upholds the red banner of new-democratic revolution despite the attacks of the reactionaries and serves as an example and inspiration for all the comrades in the world tackling and accomplishing their duties. Their struggle against bureaucratic capitalism, semi-colonialism and semi-feudalism is one of the largest mass struggles the world has ever seen.

In the major parts of the world, be it India, Peru, Brazil, Philippines or Turkey, imperialism bleeds out the peoples of the suppressed countries by bureaucratic capitalism, plunders their wealth and destroys their livelihoods. The wars of aggression against Iraq and Afghanistan, as well as the insidious genocide against the Palestinian people, are clear expressions and results of the ongoing deepening crisis of imperialism. Imperialism can't and won't stop to always incite new wars in order to still their insatiable hunger and it is up to the peoples of the world to end their misdeeds once and for all. Imperialism has turned the world into a living hell for the working class and especially the peoples of the world and it keeps on shuffling the burdens of their crisis on them.

We condemn the Zionists genocidal politics, their massacres and their Yankee-imperialist masters and we repeat our solidarity with the heroic resistance of the Palestinian people. Zionism as bridgehead and chain dog of Yankee-Imperialism in the Arabic world earns the hatred of the peoples of the world because of the decades of their strategy of expulsion and eradication and the actual atrocities against the Palestinian people and we all looking forward to present them the bill. We also condemn the imperialist aggression against the people of Ukraine and the murderous fascist hordes and we declare our support for the masses in their antifascist struggle.

It is obvious that the contradiction between imperialism and oppressed nations is far from slowing down but sharpens rapidly. But the pressure imperialism puts on the oppressed nations brings forward a quantitative and qualitative development. In vast parts of the world it flares up mass struggles and the development of antiimperialist parties, organizations and movements. These are vivid for the destruction of imperialism because the masses make history and the vast majority of them are living in the oppressed nations.

Besides this contradiction, the main contradiction on world level, it is necessary to look at the dynamic of the contradiction between proletariat and bourgeoisie as well as on the interimperialist contradiction to lay the foundation to finally crush imperialism. Only by the melting of the democratic and socialist revolution it is possible to sweep away reaction and imperialism from the face of the earth. We insist in the possibility of the revolution in the imperialist countries, even more as it is a historic necessity which is promoted by the development of the struggles in the oppressed nations.

The peoples of the world have to unite against their slavery in common struggle with the antiimperialist forces and the international proletariat. Their hatred against exploitation and oppression arising from imperialism ripens the circumstances for revolution in each country and on world level. This front has to be strengthened under the slogan: "Proletarians of all countries and peoples of the world unite!" That creates the base to further undermine imperialism. The People's Wars led by communist forces are at the forefront on the way to new order of the nowadays humiliated, downtrodden, oppressed and exploited masses. The unification of the People's Wars, the different revolutionary armed struggles and the national liberation struggles in a single firestorm of antiimperialist war will crush imperialism and plain the road towards the bright shining future of mankind.

Considering the situation in India, we see the continuous struggle of the masses in the People's War, which develops even under the harshest blows of the reaction and despite temporary setbacks. It is led by the Communist Party of India (Maoist) and on basis of a justified ideological and political line they are fulfilling their leadership tasks. It is tempering the masses in revolutionary violence, recognizes the need of breaking the capitulation in the form of so-called "Peace Agreements" and manages to overcome the large contradictions in the Indian masses by their propaganda and agitation. Only by the correct handling of important issues in context like casts, religion, culture and nationality it plays its role as the leader of the People's War. The close connection with the deepest and broadest masses, with are the most exploited and oppressed, the promotion and use of revolutionary violence, as well as the ideological basis of the party are the foundation to combat all forms of opportunism and to denounce and attack the villains of the reaction, as well as their lackeys.

As part of the worldwide anti-imperialist movement, we stand side by side with the comrades in India and understand the struggle in India against imperialism as part of the worldwide struggle against imperialism on the road to revolution and thus as part of our own struggle.

At the 2012 India conference we said: "Anti-imperialism is a struggle, on all levels, by all means, to bury the bloodiest system humanity has ever seen, to end millennia of exploitation and oppression. For this reason we have the duty to ourselves to support each other in every respect. This is not a question of following after someone and not a question of taking a narrow-minded and pedantic stance, but a question of a true unity of all combatants." We think that what we said is still as valid today as it was then and it is an important foundation of a truly proletarian internationalism. It underlines the need of a united front of anti-imperialism by extending common connection. The decisive battle of the Indian comrades and their deep connection with the masses is an example for us and helps us in organizing anti-imperialist forces. Only the connection with the masses can create the conditions to develop a successful struggle and the final victory. The standard of truth, the prove of the accuracy of our work, is the practice, nothing else. The campaign in support of the people's war in India should increase its mass character to continue the good work and bring them to new heights. Let us together increase our efforts to do so.

Comrades, friends:

Forward in the anti-imperialist struggle!

Victory to the People's War in India!

Proletarians of all countries and peoples of the world, unite!

Speech of Committee of Construction of Maoist Communist Party of Galicia and Committee of Support to the People's War in India, Galicia

Comrades of the different delegations,

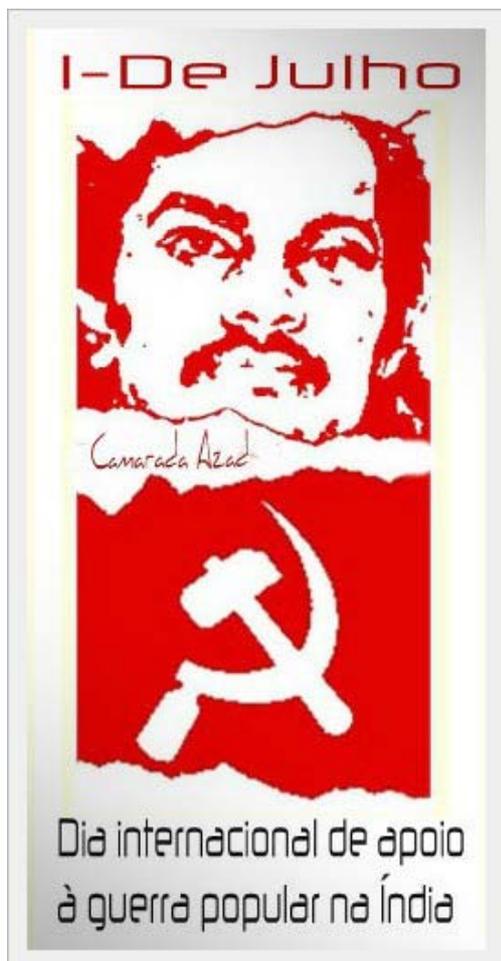

Red fraternal greetings from the Communists of Galicia.

Special thanks to all the comrades who make possible this great internationalist conference with their organization efforts. An excellent job!

This new Conference represents a victory of proletarian internationalism. A victory over opportunism and reaction. A victory over opportunism that, among the masses in many parts of the world, feeds electoral and reformist illusions of a capitalism, in its imperialist stage (as it was masterfully described by comrade Lenin) possible to be modified without proletarian revolution, without socialist revolution. All this opportunist rubbish hides the conciliation with reactionaries and the handing over of the masses to their executioners, with their hands and feet tied.

They are the two sides of the same coin which the heroic People's War in India has torn to pieces.

That is why they try to hide it, presenting it like a "local problem". Yes, a local problem which involves millions of workers and poor peasants, intellectuals, men and women who struggle consequently for a new society under the leadership of its party, the Communist Party of India (Maoist).

The 10th anniversary of the reconstitution of the Communist Party of India took place last September 21. Glory to the CPI (Maoist) and its revolutionary leadership!

The Indian reactionaries have unleashed a criminal repression and a campaign of killings against leaders of mass organizations or from the Revolutionary Democratic Front.

Delhi University Professor G. N. Saibaba has been jailed for the single crime of supporting the revolutionary masses.

We demand his immediate and unconditional release together with the thousands of men and women political prisoners in India!

A campaign to support them is sweeping the world promoted by the International Committee to Support People's War in India. We actively participate in it.

One of the tasks of this Conference is the preparation of an International Delegation that visits India to expose the fake "biggest democracy" and show the world the terror and repression in which the peoples of the wrongly called Union of India live.

Our International Committee has strengthened and the shouting of the reactionaries in India indicates that its work is progressing. This is excellent news!

The imperialists and reactionaries are mistaken if they think that they can hide with their bloodstained hands the red sun of people's war. The peoples of the world see in the people's war the example to follow, the example of the fallen heroes who have sacrificed their lives for the liberation of the people.

Honor and glory to the fallen comrades! Lal Salam! Lal Salam! Lal Salam!

The great Red banner of Marxism-Leninism-Maoism waves with rage and courage in the hands of the comrades of India, of the Philippines, of Turkey, of Peru, of Bangladesh, of Manipur and hundreds of detachments prepare themselves, in other parts of the world, for World Proletarian Revolution.

The East wind of People's War will sweep away all tyrants and oppressors from the face of the earth!
The Future is bright!

Speech of Revolutionary Construction (Austria)

To develop Proletarian Internationalism – to organize solidarity!

Why is the solidarity work with people's war in India such an important task, especially to the maoists forces?

1) India is one of the today's storm-center of revolution, with the main motivating force for proletarian world revolution – the oppressed peoples and nations in their struggle against imperialism.

2) Today the CPI (Maoist) is leading the people's war in India, one of the most developed struggles against imperialism.

Proletarian Internationalism is necessary for proletariat's victory, with understanding this we have to defend the struggle of our comrades in India! The struggling India must be defended and propagated as one of the storm-center of Proletarian Worldrevolution, as example concerning people's war and the CPI (Maoist) as its leading center, as well as the creative way to mobilize people under the banner of Maoism.

Solidarity has to be organized!

International movements for solidarity are not independent from situation of class struggle in each country. Although there are objective conditions which bring Proletarian Internationalism as a result, Proletarian Internationalism (like the socialist consciousness) does not happen and develop in a spontaneous way or automatically within the rise of people's movement or workers struggle. It is the task of the revolutionists and the Maoists, to organize and educate the progressive part of the people and working-class under the banner of Proletarian Internationalism.

From history in Europe we know the glorious example of the International Brigades, which made Proletarian Internationalism to a strong weapon in the struggles against Franco-Fascism. That happened in a time of developed and constituted Communist Parties in Europe, as well as with a socialist front at the proletarian side under the leadership of Soviet Union. We don't find the same conditions today.

In Europe, although the struggling is getting more, we have a dissipated proletarian movement and also an organizationally weak position of the Maoist forces.

According to our situation today in Austria and our experiences with solidarity work till now, we can make solidarity work in setting selective main points and initiatives. In this way we participated in international initiatives with manifestations at the Indian embassy in Vienna, at the international week of solidarity in 2012, at the meeting in Hamburg and also at the international day to support political prisoners in India. For that we made meetings for information, discussion and celebration, and also did agitation and propaganda with leaflet and one extra short newspaper for the campaign. In some points we also integrated the people's war in India in our topics concerning Austria. For example we had a meeting with the topic "Only people's war is able to smash fascism", where we talked about the armed struggles of the Austrian proletariat in history and the struggle of the comrades in India today.

As a midterm task, we are going to organize a committee, which should do solidarity work in a continuous way and reach a certain level of potential to mobilize. This committee should be initiated, guided and supported by our organization, but it should be carried by parts of the people (also from the democratic movement). Concerning to this we make some positive experiences with the campaign in 2012, but we didn't have enough strengths to tighten our success and to organize the mobilized potential.

What can we do?

It is important for solidarity work to define a correct line concerning avantgarde and peoples. So agitation and propaganda has to happen on two levels: We have to work on the people's struggle for democratic rights, the trade union struggle, as well as people's war. The main focus has to be on propagating the CPI (Maoist) and its substantial role as leading center of people's war, as well as Maoism as the leading ideology.

Through agitation and propaganda we also have to make connections between important questions of the movement here (like repression or revisionism) and the struggle in India. Ideologically we have to use the solidarity work to propagate Maoism, to prove that the working-class and the people can only go to victory with Maoism.

Also it must be a perspective to develop and organize more practically solidarity. That could be campaigns against military intervention or boycott against concerns which doing exploitation in India.

We must try to get the full potential of the progressive and solidly part of the Austrian people for supporting people's war in India. In a longer term our solidarity work has to reach a level to be able to defend and support a revolution and a new-democratic state in one of the storm-center of worldrevolution. For this it is necessary that our solidarity work (on each level) has a consequent antiimperialist and antirevisionist character.

To go ahead with a successful solidarity work it's necessary that class struggle in each country goes ahead and having development, as well as the best possible unity (with the todays conditions) of the European revolutionary forces.

Concerning to that, how can the 'International Committee of Support People' War in India' work?

In Europe solidarity with India gives a platform, on which several groups, organizations and parties work together. With various ideologically differences it is a minimal unity to propagate Maoism and defend people's war in India.

Based on that, we think we should make initiatives and documents, which connect the topic of people's war in India with questions of class-struggle in Europe in a creative way, as well as finding a way for the organizations which are participating, for political association in a selective way, in doing pan-European initiatives concerning topics like George Ibrahim Abdallah, or concerning the questions of class struggle (like boycott of the EU-elections). That is one possibility to support class-struggle in Europe on base of the unity of supporting people's war in India, without trying to build any formally unity or unity without principles.

Ahead with people's war in India!
Long lives Proletarian Internationalism!

Speech of the Maoist Communist Party - Italy

Comrades,

it is with joy, enthusiasm and excitement that we hail the 10th anniversary of the CPI (M).

The formation of this party was a powerful strengthening for the international communist movement and a great assertion that it is the people's war that unites communists and forge genuine Maoist Communist parties.

An example from which we draw lessons, inspiration, but mainly a great confidence and an ideological strength for the proletarians and the advanced masses in our country.

The formation of this party and its 10 years long history met and meet the aspirations and desires of the working class, the peasantry and the oppressed broad masses of India to have a genuine proletarian party that leads them toward a revolutionary change and the building of New Democratic society, marching to socialism and communism.

The flames blazing in South Asia makes India a potential new China, that of time of revolution. This represents revolution a huge event in the context of the balance of power in the world between imperialism and struggles of the oppressed peoples and between revolution and counter-revolution, an event that confirms that the main contradiction is that between imperialism and oppressed countries and nations, and that the revolution is the main trend.

The great decision to found this party has also pointed out a method to build unity, as shown by the new and important stage of unity of the Indian communist movement represented by the merger of CPI(ML) Naxalbari and CPI (M).

At the time of its formation, the CPI (M) wrote in his statement:

“The new Communist Party of India (Maoist) will continue to act as a consolidated political vanguard of the Indian proletariat. Marxism-Leninism-Maoism will be the ideological basis guiding its thinking in all the spheres of its activities. It will continue its struggle against right and left deviations, particularly against revisionism, by taking this as the main danger for the communist movement as a whole. It will still seek to unite all genuine Maoist groups that remain outside this unified Party.”

10 years later, this promise has been met and, therefore, it is a proofed Maoist road and line to draw from, in every country where Maoists need to be united in a vanguard communist party.

But it is also an indication for the ICM, in the process to reconstitute an international organization after the collapse of the RIM.

Marxism-Leninism- Maoism, People's War, unity of the MLM Communists. Our party is openly committed with this path, it has been working for this during the past years and is united with the CPI(Maoist) in the construction of this process. The merger of CPI(M-L) Naxalbari brings better conditions for the advance of this process of unity, which all the genuine MLM parties and organizations must look at and draw lessons from, and, consequently, take side.

The unity of MLM parties and organizations is a crucial element to develop support to the People's War in India internationally.

That is why our party provides its full support to the line and action of the International Committee to Support People's War in India and calls everyone to consolidate this unity and to fight the false internationalism, that with "leftist" words advocates a rightist practice and does not understand the strategic importance of the support to People's war and the International Committee itself.

India enters overbearingly the world scene of imperialism with its MNCs, that play an active role in this system, the same active role that the Modi's new fascist Hindu regime wants to play.

Even in our country, the tie between Indian MNCs and Italian masters is being consolidated as a relationship of collusion, alliance – yet within the contention and competition on the world market shaken by the economical and financial crisis. The case of the war industry, see Finmeccanica, the case of the steel industry, see Arcelor-Mittal and Jindal, are showing that the Indian MNCs become also an internal enemy for proletarians in Italy, and the Italian MNCs fully participate in the super-exploitation of the proletarians in India and the robbery on Indian people.

But it must be said that in this way the workers go through the experience that masters, from Italy to India, are united in seeking their profits on the blood the workers and masses and that the proletarians are a single class on international level and must strongly tighten their ties of solidarity and struggle.

And our party is committed to make this internationalist tie concrete.

La guerra popolare in India guidata dal PCI maoista colpisce duro gli esponenti politici del governo e della repressione antipopolare

LA GUERRA POPOLARE GUIDATA DAI MAOISTI È LA VIA DELLA LOTTA E DELLA LIBERAZIONE DEI PROLETARI E DELLE MASSE POPOLARI CONTRO L'IMPERIALISMO

This tie in the economic field is translated into a new political harmony between the Modi's fascist government and the modern fascist-style Renzi's government, that collects Berlusconi and all the Italian imperialist bourgeoisie.

These governments want to walk hand in hand and treat their relationship at the light of this.

The Indian government has also asked our government, as all European governments, to stop the activities in support to the people's war, that in our country have a solid base in our party, in the International Committee and its dozens and dozens of initiatives carried out in recent years among workers, youth, women and genuine revolutionaries and democrats.

The Indian government sends back a marine who murdered Indian fishermen while uses the most brutal repression on its own people. This is the second reason to consider this collaboration as part a of the internal enemies in the class struggle in Italy.

We are well aware that the best internationalist support is to make proletarian and socialist revolution in our country and that the best solidarity to the people's war is to begin people's war in our country.

For this we are working, amidst hurdles, advances and setbacks, for a very difficult enterprise; and every time our party had the opportunity to talk with Indian comrades, we found understanding of these difficulties and encouragement.

But the beginning of people's wars depends essentially on the ideological, political and organizational basis, and on this the contribution of the Indian communist movement, as that of other parties of the ICM, is one of the decisive factors.

We are exactly at this stage of ideological and political preparation, to fulfill our duties as genuine internationalists.

Long live the 10th anniversary of the formation of CPI(M)!

Long live the unity of Marxist-Leninist-Maoist Parties!

Honour to the martyrs of the revolution in India!

Support the People's War in India!

Speech of the Revolutionary Proletarian Feminist Movement (MFPR, Italy)

The Revolutionary Proletarian Feminist Movement, generated organization of PCm Italy, salutes today, from this international meeting, with deep revolutionary joy, the 10th anniversary of the formation of the Communist Party of India (Maoist), party leading the great people's war in India against the increasingly reactionary Indian state and imperialism; we salute all the members of the Party and the revolutionary masses fighting in India and in particular the many women who in the march toward to achieving of a new power, the people's power, which represent an integral broad and decisive part of it; and we also pay homage all the men and women who fell martyrs in battle, raising even higher the red flag of revolution.

At the International Conference in Hamburg, on November 2012, coinciding with International Day against the violence on women, we launched the proposal to construct a bridge/link of solidarity/support with Indian women “both to acquaint the popular and proletarian women masses in our country the war of the Indian people and the direct protagonism in it of the many women comrades and thousands Indian women, and, on the other side, find the strength and the example to let progress also in our country the revolutionary process in which women will be protagonists, especially the proletarian women”.

And indeed we started to build that bridge since that 25 November, when at the international level we particularly dedicated that day to the Maoist women in India; and then advancing in our country towards new and important stages of struggle in the spheres of women, especially with the first historical women's strike on 25 November, 2013 and more recently on March 8 this year, each time directing our internationalist gaze to all workers and proletarian women struggling in the world, especially to all revolutionary women who are at the forefront of people's wars. We wanted to raise hands higher and higher and shake them together with our sisters in India, because India is becoming a symbol of the violence of the capitalist and imperialist system, particularly and in all aspects against women, and today, with the new Modi's fascist and pro-imperialist government, this process quickly increasing. In India, the old feudal traditions, the family tribalism, religious fundamentalism in the vast areas out of the big cities, are combined in the modern megalopolis with the savagery of the bunch, the new bullying, where imperialism adds new aberrations to the old ones.

Anuradha Gandhi, comrade Janaki, deceased leader of CPI(Maoist), who developed the theory of the revolutionary women's movement in India and organized them in several areas, in an interview to Poru Mahila on March 2001 organo of Krantikari Adivasi Mahila Sanghatan, speaking about women in urban areas, said: “Though all women in India are under feudal, capitalist, imperialist and patriarchal oppression, it is seen in various forms in different areas, the urban and the rural areas. The working class and middle class women in urban areas have some specific problems. Firstly, if we look at the problems inside the family, even in urban areas women are oppressed by the feudal culture. (...) The unmarried girls are under pressure to marry men from the same caste and same religion(...) Even if a woman wants to work outside home she will have to take the permission of her father, brother or husband. People of some castes and religions (for e.g. the Muslims and Kshatriyas) do not like their woman to do jobs. So it becomes inevitable for women to fight even for economic independence. (...)Especially since the past 25-30 years may be India is the only country in the world where the new crime of burning brides for dowry has come into vogue. (...) Women in urban areas have many opportunities to step out of home and work. They get jobs in factories, offices, schools, hospitals and shops. But in many jobs they are not paid equally with men. (...) On top of it they have to face harassment from the contractors and the men under whom they work. This takes place in many forms. Not only the working class women but even educated middle class women are facing such harassment. (...) Lastly, another point is the influence of imperialist culture is very great on the urban women. They are not only influenced by consumerism but are also victims of it. This is increasing day by day. Instead of human values they are giving more importance to beauty and beauty products. As a result there is an environment of insecurity due to atrocities and harassments in the urban areas.”

But especially in India violence, killings of women – against which in recent period large mass demonstrations took place in several states, in which the participation of women, youth was huge – are perpetrated directly by the Indian state as instrument of repression, especially in rural areas where the people's war advances and raping of peasant, Dalit women by the police, military and paramilitary forces, has become a routing as part of Operation Green Hunt, and rapes are hideously combined with torture against the Maoist women in custody. Many women, comrades, however, have turned this violence, the hard conditions of their life, the state repression into a powerful factor of rebellion and joining the people's war. Around 40% of fighting force consists of women and they constitute a fundamental part of the revolutionary people's war led by the CPI(Maoist).

“People's War had shattered the hesitations of the women.” said Anuradha Gandhi speaking about the adivasi women who massively joined people's war in DK, but it occurred in all areas affected by people's war, so that the State fears the numerous participation of women and tries to oppose them in many ways.

So, that of women is one of the basic issues addressed by the CPI(Maoist), to develop and strengthen the revolutionary militancy of women. Many of them are cadres of the PLGA, yet steps have to be done to fully assert their leading role. Anuradha Gandhi wrote: “...Wherever the party is working systematically, we can see that the participation of women is more in all political activities and movements. ... Likewise there is a need to give special social and political training to women members in the squads and platoons. Though they are opposing such big enemies and forces, the shyness and sense of subordination whose remnants are still present, are also their big enemies which are obstructing their development. ... They have to fight against the enemy inside them. ... To face all these challenges our women comrades should attain political and ideological maturity and have self confidence. ...to put forward its understanding regarding true liberation of women by intervention in the women's movement which is going on in the form of various streams in the country.”

The struggle against the of feudal/patriarchal/sexist oppression in the areas where the new power emerged is a concrete, daily, struggle. Although difficult and complex it has advanced both practically and ideologically through the special mass organizations of women led by the party. But this struggle goes on also within the party, among the revolutionary ranks against, persisting or reproducing patriarchal forms, through also specific rectification campaigns.

The leading role of women in the People's War in India shows that while the revolutionary class struggle is carried forward, it sets in motion the struggle for a transformation of ideas, culture, family, religious traditions...

The people's war in India is therefore an international example of the liberation struggle of women and of making revolution within the revolution. An example which comrades of the Revolutionary Proletarian Feminist Movement, have always looked along the not easy but exciting path, in a imperialist country as Italy, aimed at the win over the majority of women for the revolutionary struggle.

The tie / support with the revolutionary struggle of Indian comrades is and should be a stimulus, inspiration and mutual encouragement. Particularly, in our country today the main field of our struggle fight on the ground of women is their conditions of life and work, the double oppression of the proletarians, precarious workers, unemployed, immigrant women. It is a field on which the members of the MFPR, lead various struggles. For example, last year in November, as we already mentioned, these struggles merged into a single and historical event, the "strike of women", that has seen been joint and participated by thousands of women: factory workers, school workers, precarious workers in different sectors, unemployed, students. It was a strike in which the struggle against the systemic emergency of femicides and sexual violence on women in our country, so-called "civilized", is intertwined with the whole condition of double oppression and exploitation that the majority of women suffer, as a result of the more and more reactionary policies of modern middle ages implemented by rulers. A strike that owners, government, State, political parties, official unions, bourgeois and petty-bourgeois feminists felt as a "danger", but also underestimated or ignored by economic "communist" organizations, because it has put at the center the issue of the revolutionary double struggle of women as crucial to overthrow from the top to the bottom this social system, according to the concept of the revolution within the revolution to build a new society in which the whole life must change. Indeed it has been a bright spark that, igniting many fires of women's struggle, from North to South in the country, can, throughout the time, "set fire to the prairie". During the strike of the women we connected our struggle to that of Indian women and all women in the world against capitalist and imperialist system, as a powerful force for revolution.

Through the experiences of struggle as the strike of women, the comrades of the Revolutionary Proletarian Feminist Movement, organization generated by the party, led by the Marxism-Leninism-Maoism, who are at the forefront in the organization and leadership of the proletarian women in particular, stepped forward to play a leading role in all fields, in the union movement, the women's movement and especially in the struggle for the revolutionary transformation of our country, starting from the construction of the party for the revolution. A communist party of new type, which raises as strategic the issue of women, as a delimiting line, a party where women are objectively the most radical vanguard, the driving force within the ideological and political struggle against patriarchy, bourgeois / sexist ideas and influence, against the merely accepting "in principle" the issue of women which does not turn that into a material force, grasping the concept of revolution within the revolution already inside the party, as an overall richness in the Party and for it. Amidst advances and setbacks, the our comrades contribute to the revolutionary process in this country.

With this in mind, to be firmly tied to the Maoist of the people's wars in the world, and today specially with the women fighting in the most advanced and effective People's War's at the international level, is a key point.

At the light of all this, in conclusion our speech on behalf of MFPR we feel necessary to take the commitment for a specific initiative toward Indian women, vital heart of people's war against the fierceness of the Indian state, genocide of its own people, an initiative we propose to the ICSPWI, organizer of this meeting and to the women's movement at the international level, so that the bridge we built is strengthened and extended.

Speech of the Maoist Communist Movement in Tunisia

From the country which gave birth to the "Arab Spring" took place, where the masses shook and toppled down pro-imperialist regimes, our militant and internationalist support reaches the People's War in India and the party leading it.

Although Tunisia is a small country of 10 million people in North Africa, it gained, especially in recent years, a considerable importance for the revolutionary development in the region. After the first the miners' strike of Gafsa and Méthlaoui in the south of the country in 2008, on December 2010, the uprising against the decades-long regime of Ben Ali broke out in Sidi Bouzid, again in the south of the country. Since the days of Bourguiba, the first president of "independent" Tunisia tied to the French imperialist bourgeoisie, this area has been doomed to the economic and social underdevelopment by the domestic comprador bourgeoisie mainly base in Tunis and the cities on the coast. Against this condition, the strikes by miners and other people's masses (mainly of the youth) in the South of the country, increasingly extended to workers, youth, women across the country, including the petty and middle bourgeoisie and the intellectuals. Massive strikes combined with roadblocks and attacks on the hated army barracks and police stations across the country led to the fall of the regime. All this recent history is well-known.

What is perhaps less well known, even within our movement, is how varied the presence of the Maoists in Tunisia is. There are different groups and parties operating both in the biggest cities and the countryside. These comrades together carry out revolutionary work among the different sectors of society and are at the forefront in the support to the PW in India and the party that leads it. As the Maoist Communist Movement in Tunisia wrote in the message to the International Conference in Hamburg: "We are proud of the progress made by the CPI (Maoist), especially since 2004, year of its formation, and we congratulate the militants and fighters who, thanks to their determination and bravery, were able to free up one third of the "Indian" territory and founded the people's power, the new democratic power." And, as the Maoist Communist Organization in Tunisia wrote for the same occasion: "As Maoist Communist Organization in Tunisia we would have taken part in this international conference to express our support for the People's War in India led by our comrades of the Indian Communist Party (Maoist)."

This solidarity consists not only of the words sent to Conference in Hamburg by these organizations belonging of the wider Maoist Tunisian movement but also of actions the comrades carry out in the daily struggles they lead.

For example, the students front, particularly in the university, where the organized form of the students, the student union UGET, is heavily influenced by the social-democrat parties of the Popular Front, the support to the PW in India implies a sharp theoretical and ideological struggle against those who advocate the peaceful means and electoral road to socialism. Leafleting, solidarity messages from students Tunisian, meetings in the have been organized in recent years with this purpose. Some art students put their skills at the service of the latest international campaigns, realizing hand-drawn posters.

Another example is the support to political prisoners, whose struggle is all the more broad and important in Tunisia, a country where the youth who participated in the revolt against old regime and continue fearing even the current one, of so-called "transition" (indeed restoration) and other opponents in general are arrested, beaten and tortured. On the last day of June 19, dedicated to Saibaba, chairman of the RDF arrested by the Indian regime, the comrades of the MCM-T issued a message and a poster to create a "bridge" of struggle against the suppression ongoing both in Tunisia and India. As in the words of the message sent to the Hamburg Conference: "We understand the ferocity of imperialism and its servants against the revolutionary movement and the people's war in particular, we understand why they have done their utmost to derail the uprisings in the Arab countries in their favour. Without revolutionary leadership, these spontaneous uprisings could not go far, even if the masses continue to fight with teeth and nails."

Lenin said that the best example of proletarian internationalism is to make revolution in own country, In Tunisia as in India, the revolutionary strategy is the Protracted People's War, with the creation of liberated zones in the countryside to encircle the cities. Tunisia has vast areas of the countryside and over the past few decades there have been experiences of armed struggle, particularly in the North-west and South of the country, where guerrilla units such as Fellagha led encirclement campaigns against the colonial forces in the years of the national liberation struggle, 1952-1954. Unfortunately, from these favorable objective conditions in Tunisia currently take advantage only the jihadist groups which can easily move and realize actions through the porous borders with Algeria and Libya. We must also learn from the last revolt, that showed the rebel character and a prominent role of young workers from outskirts and suburbs. Right two days ago, other youth we can say "democrats" organized "the first demonstration against the ISIL in an Arab and Muslim country." We do not know exactly the nature of this protest. In any case, to develop a relentless struggle against Islamic fascism represented by forces such as ISIS is a necessity since they are an obstacle for the revolutionary forces. We have to take into account all these elements in the application of the general strategy of the PW.

The Islamist hegemony is a problem that affects the entire Arab world, where currently many armed groups turn to jihad and no revolutionary organization develops armed struggle, excepted some forces in Iraq. It is obvious that in order to assert the path of PPW in the countries of the North Africa and Middle East, the first goal to achieve, is the theoretical and political defeat of Islamist movements and groups, which often rely on mass support (This problem is most evident in Palestine with Hamas).

Secondly, there is the struggle against neo-revisionist forces.

This work serves the growth and strengthening of Maoist parties in the countries of the region by joining the Maoists in the ideological struggle against existing deviations, as the pan-Arabism, that looks at non-proletarian theories and forces disguised as "anti-imperialist", as Baathism, Nasserism and even Islamism, arguing a "united fronts" with reactionary forces such as Hezbollah or Hamas, holding them as "nationalist".

It is a serious issue. Particularly the contradiction within the people arising from the influence that the Islamic religion has on the masses of Middle East North Africa region. For this reason, the interesting debate started in the International Meeting "From the uprisings to the revolution in the Arab countries" held in Paris on 2011 has to go on and be deepened.

The events of the last few months concerning the ISIL show once again that the reactionary religious movements are mirrors of imperialism. They both oppress the masses. Because of the lacking of a Maoist leadership in the region, the fight against ISIS is waged by a front including imperialists and Zionists, the same who sponsored the ISIL in anti-Syrian function, the pro-imperialist Iraqi Kurdish peshmerga, the Syrian Kurds of YPG, who claim to be anti-imperialist but welcomed the bombing of imperialism on Syria. The victory of this front will not solve the problems of the masses.

The Maoist parties and organizations in Turkey, Kurdistan and Iraq can and must be a solution for this situation.

In Palestine, the hegemony of Hamas on the one hand and, on the other hand, the revisionists do not allow the Palestinian people to undertake the path of the PW.

The People's War in India and the party that leads it, whose tenth anniversary we celebrate today, as well as other people's wars, are an ideological beacon for the development of Maoism in the MENA region and to assert the path of the PW.

As put by the comrades of the Maoist Communist Movement in Tunisia in the Conference in Hamburg: "We state that the people's war in India is our war, because imperialism and its lackeys launched a war on the workers, exploited and oppressed peoples all-around the world, and in front of this violence of the reactionary state, only the People's War led by the Maoist Communist Party can lead to the victory, the liberation and the construction of people's power, the new democracy, opening the road to socialism."

We wish that the anniversary of the formation of CPI (Maoist) be a good omen for the birth of new Maoist parties which launch people's wars in North Africa and the Middle East, historical necessary opportunity at the service of the world proletarian revolution.

From the Communist (Maoist) Party of Afghanistan

Comrades!

Due the wide-ranging engagements in party and revolutionary struggles within Afghanistan we are unable to send a delegate to participate in the meeting. We hope you would accept our apology in this matter. We hope that a successful meeting would be held and would produce positive results. The efforts of the International Committee in Support of the people's war in India, in holding such international gatherings, are truly commendable. Over the past one year, we have worked to solve the problems of our supporters in different European countries, so they can seriously take part in all the revolutionary struggles there, including in participating in the International Committee in Support of the People's war in India. We hope we would soon be able to establish permanent and direct relations with the committee.

The people's war in India is a strong source of inspiration for all revolutionaries around the world. Thus, for establishing permanent and durable relationship with the ICSPWI, we would strive to establish a committee in support of people's war in India in our part of the world.

From the Revolutionary Communist Party of Canada

Dear comrades,

Receive our solidarity greetings on the occasion of the holding of the Second International Conference of Solidarity with the People's War in India! Circumstances beyond our control prevent us from being physically present with you, but we celebrate with you the 10th anniversary of the glorious Communist Party of India (Maoist) as we reaffirm our support to the International Committee to Support the People's War in India and its objectives.

We are confident that this meeting will mark a step forward in the vital solidarity work that revolutionary communists, anti-imperialists and progressives of all countries should develop with our comrades and the broad masses of India, who are fighting with great courage and determination for national liberation, New Democracy and socialism against a reactionary state that is well integrated into the world imperialist system and is supported by all the big imperialist powers.

The events that occurred since the successful holding of the First International Conference in November 2012 in Hamburg make it even more necessary and urgent the deployment of a broad solidarity with the revolutionaries of India.

In India, the reactionary state is continuing its efforts to crush the people's war. Since the launching of Operation Green Hunt five years ago, the repressive forces of the Indian state attacked indiscriminately the masses who support the people's war and are taking part in the building of a new power. The goal of this vast operation, which takes the form of a war against the people, is to eliminate the soil from which the movement that has already begun to shake the old state and the reactionary classes is taking shape.

This war has already inflicted terrible suffering and made thousands of victims among the people of India. But it did not succeed in destroying nor extinguishing the aspirations for liberation of the masses of this country, which are embodied in the movement led by our comrades from the CPI (Maoist). By launching Operation Green Hunt, the Indian state acted as reactionaries of all countries who, as Comrade Mao Zedong pointed out, "lift a stone only to drop it on their own feet."

In fact, the massacres perpetrated by the representatives of the Indian state have prompted different sectors of Indian society to condemn them and show solidarity with the Maoists. The same thing happened abroad—albeit on a smaller scale—where thousands of voices were heard denouncing Operation Green Hunt and the all-out repression exercised by the Indian state.

The broadening of the mobilization in solidarity with the masses of India is intolerable for the reactionary state. This is the reason for the hysterical response of Indian authorities to the setting up of the International Committee to Support the People's War in India and the holding of the Hamburg conference. This also explains the recent campaign launched by the Indian state against progressive and democratic sectors, organizations and activists who dared to denounce Operation Green Hunt and defend the legitimacy of the revolutionary movement.

The cowardly arrest of Professor GN Saibaba and dozens of other activists aims both to terrorize the urban masses and discourage them of supporting the struggle of the Adivasis and poor peasants, and to isolate the Maoist revolutionaries.

In the long term, these attempts are futile and doomed to failure: history has repeatedly shown that even the worst repression can never stifle the aspirations to liberation of the proletarian and popular masses. In the short term, however, they pose a real challenge and there is an urgent need to stop them and to inflict a defeat to the reactionary state.

The work done since its inception by the International Committee to Support the People's War in India is already considerable. The initiatives it took and the international days of action it called for have brought together the genuine revolutionary forces and encouraged them to take action and bring to the fore the issue of the revolution going on in India and the role played by the CPI (Maoist) in this process.

We believe that this work must continue and grow with the objective of building an even larger movement in solidarity with the people of India. As we stated at the Hamburg conference, we think that there is no contradiction between supporting the people's war and developing a broad mass movement against Operation Green Hunt and the repression enforced by the Indian state. Indeed, the existence of such an anti-imperialist and democratic movement can only serve the continuation of people's war until its victory.

In the short term, the building of such a movement is the main task of the parties and organizations that want to support the people's war in India. That is why we supported and we are still supportive of the International Campaign Against War on the People of India (ICAWPI). As much as we need to bring together and unite the genuine communists behind the banner of Maoism that is upheld with courage and determination by the CPI (Maoist) comrades, we must also dare to mobilize and unite all the forces that could oppose the anti-people war being waged by the Indian state—whether they are in agreement or not with all of the objectives of the People's War and the New Democratic Revolution in India.

And insofar as we consider such a movement necessary, it is a responsibility for supporters of the People's War than to build this campaign, even if it seems to be less active than it was when it was launched a few years ago and if the comrades in charge of this campaign are no longer able to reply to emails that one could send to them.

It is in this context that we support the coming international delegation as a unique opportunity to confront the reactionary state, condemn Operation Green Hunt and the all-out repression against the people and expose the hypocrisy of the so-called "largest democracy in the world" that the imperialists and reactionaries will cherish and defend by all means.

Full success to the International Meeting in Support to the People's War in India!

Long Live the Communist Party of India (Maoist)!

Move heaven and earth to stop the war against the people of India!

From Long March Toward Communism (Madrid, Spain)

Dear comrades and friends:

Gran Marcha Hacia el Comunismo (Long March Towards Communism) expresses its enthusiastic support to the International Meeting in Occasion of the 10th Anniversary of the CPI (Maoist) and greets the International Committee to Support the People's War in India who has organized it as well as all those parties, organizations, committees, groups and people that are here today in this Meeting as well as those who have not been able to attend for several reasons but support the People's War in India, the hope of the oppressed and exploited of the world.

In the previous International Conference to Support the People's War in India held on 24 November 2012 in Hamburg, Long March Towards Communism committed to bring the revolutionary voice and struggle of the CPI (Maoist), the People's Liberation Guerrilla Army, the Revolutionary People's Committees and the rest of the Indian revolutionary mass organizations to the proletarians, workers, students, progressive intellectuals, who in different cities and villages of Spain mobilize against the crisis of the capitalist system in order for them to know and learn from their experience. And this is not only our internationalist duty but, more important, because the Spanish media, mostly in the hands of bourgeoisie and imperialism, maintain a strict wall of silence regarding the People's War in India led by the CPI (Maoist), -which now celebrates its 10th anniversary- in order to prevent that its example spreads. A vain attempt!

That is why, in these nearly two years since the previous International Conference, Long March Towards Communism has not stopped its informative and awareness-raising work of making known the People's War in India, not only by means of leaflets and posters but also, primarily, through its blog, which is currently a loudspeaker in the Spanish language of the heroic New Democratic Revolution through revolutionary People's War led by the CPI (Maoist) and which is followed with interest by the class conscious proletariats and masses not only from Spain but also from Latin America and other parts of the world.

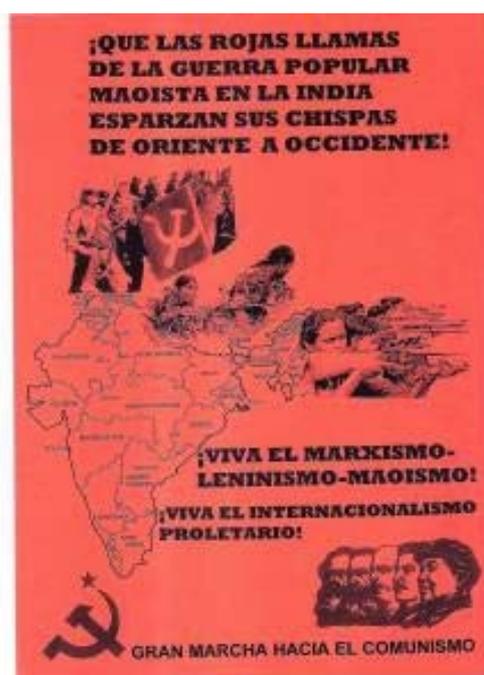

Long March Towards Communism is firmly convinced that this International Meeting will be another very important step –as it was the International Conference of Hamburg- to consolidate and extend the support and solidarity movement with the People's War in India, wishing it the greatest success in its work and discussions.

Long live the People's War in India!

Long live the 10th Anniversary of the CPI (Maoist)!

Long live active proletarian internationalism!

Red Greetings! Lal Salaam!

From the Communist Party of Greece (M-L)

The Leading Organ of the Communist Party of Greece (marxist-leninist) sends you our warm comradely greetings for the tenth anniversary of the Communist Party of India (Maoist), the vanguard force of the Indian people in his struggle for national and social liberation.

We believe that the unification of the communist forces in India and the founding of the Party were an important step towards the advancement of the revolutionary movement in India with broader impact on the communist forces all over the world. We watch with interest the struggles of the workers, the peasants and the oppressed masses of India, we take courage from their successes and their resolution.

We stand in solidarity with the struggles of Indian revolutionaries.

We condemn the savage suppression and oppression by the the Indian state. The murders, persecutions, and arrests against the revolutionaries will not achieve the aims of the Indian state. The power of the revolutionary forces that is based on the people is unconquerable.

The workers, the youth, and the progressive and revolutionary forces in Greece stand wholeheartedly alongside the revolutionary struggles in India. They organize actions of solidarity to the political prisoners and publicize the state oppression and the violation of democratic and human rights of the struggling masses of India.

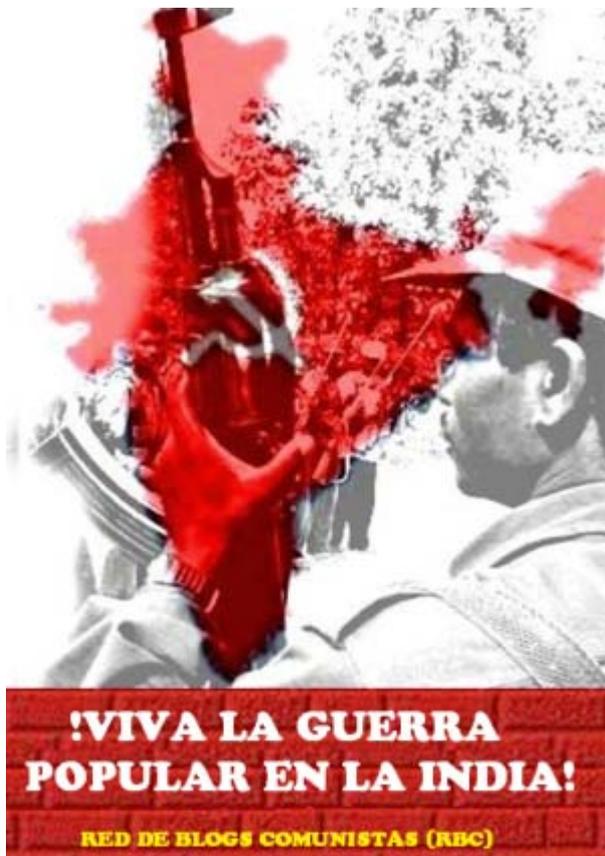

From Irish Republican Socialist Party

Comrades,

We in Ireland will organize something to commemorate this event.

Lal Salam!

From Network of Communist blogs (Spanish Language)

Dear Comrades,

The Communist Blogs Network (RBC) was born just a year ago in order to defend the necessity for the union of the different ideological conceptions existing within the International Communist Movement, mainly focused on the revolutionary practice. Therefore, we consider necessary to learn all the revolutionary material from classics like Marx, Engels, Lenin, Stalin and Mao, among others, so that, following the historical and dialectical materialism, we could open the door to the unity based on the most genuine principles of the revolutionary and theoretical history of communism. We believe that at present the Naxalite movement is the vanguard on this line, so we have discussed the possibility of being part of the Support Committee of People's War in India in order to promote, publish, support and learn from the revolutionary fight that our comrades of the CPI-M are being prosecuted, in order to put an end to all exploitation and injustice and to overthrow the capitalist dictatorship and build a socialist society.

To that effect, we would like to propose our joining to the Committee, inviting all of you to tell us what steps we need to take for it.

Communist Blogs Network (RBC) sends fraternal greetings to the International Committee for the Support of People's War in India (CIAGPI) and congratulations on the success of the International Conference on the 10th Anniversary of the Communist Party of India (PCI m). We are pleased by the attendance of many militant and revolutionary organizations, and expressions of solidarity of many revolutionary groups who, like us, were unable to attend.

RBC must recall the importance of the ten-year struggle of the Communist Party of India (PCI-m) and their struggle to defeat capitalism's savage government of New Delhi, at the service of foreign multinationals and the local oligarchy and to build for the good of the working class, the peasantry and the oppressed masses of India—a socialist society, through a People's War and towards a New Democratic Revolution.

We believe that the PCI-m and the Naxalite movement is today, an example for the international working class, and therefore stand as an indispensable support. We must disseminate and explain it, make it known to the exploited of all people and the working class of the world. India is a country with rich natural resources, sold by the propaganda media as the "largest democracy in the world," as an alternative to neoliberal capitalism, as if the criminal regime of the bourgeoisie could be at odds with their criminal and exploitative nature of people and the working class. However, in reality it is a country that applies a cruel and merciless dictatorship of capital at the expense of misery, slavery and domination of workers and peasants.

In fact, the enormous and immeasurable riches of India are still in the hands of a parasitic minority and available to large investors in foreign corporations, leaving the people of India excluded from its enjoyment, benefit and, above all, of any capacity decision on its use. In short, we thank the PCI-m their struggle for emancipation of the workers and peasants in the villages of India, and indeed of all workers, peasants and people of the world, which has lead the way for release, the seizure of power and the start of construction of a socialist society, steadily without ever abandoning the class struggle against the capitalist class, with the goal that marked Marx and Engels in the Communist Manifesto: a world without exploiters and exploited, a communist society. Along the way you want to go together ICP-m, explaining, supporting and spreading their struggle and its vanguard role, Communist Blogs Network, which reiterates its firm support and solidarity to the people of India led by the Communist Party of India (Maoist), in their ongoing struggle for national and social liberation.

Red Greetings to Communist Party of India- Maoist!

Long live the Naxalite Revolution!

Glory to the people of India in their struggle against imperialism and capitalism!

Long live the World Proletarian Revolution!

From Organization of Workers of Afghanistan (M-L-M, principally Maoist)

As a Maoist organization, our organization fully supports the protracted people's war in India.

We hope our Indian comrades follow the red path of new democracy, and they sure will succeed.

Internationalist support is the primary stem toward reviving the global application of proletarian internationalism. So, Maoist parties, organizations and individuals revolutionaries are invited to support the protracted people's war in India.

Long live revolution!

Down with operation green hunt!

Stop the "Modi-fication" of India and its lackeys, ie. The so called fake "CPI (red star)!"

Long life protracted people's war all over the world!

Apply Maoism! Crush revisionism!

From Communist Organization M-L Voie Proletarienne (France)

Dear comrades,

We regret not being able to join you at this conference, when we had taken part in the one which took place in Hamburg last year. We hold up that supporting the Indian Revolution is an important demarcation in the International Communist Movement.

We reaffirm our support for the revolutionary organizations of the Indian State that conduct People's War on the path of New Democracy and Socialism, as well as for the popular and democratic movement in this country, and all those who oppose Imperialism, Feudalism and Capitalism.

As communists of France, we have a responsibility to pay particular attention to the interference of our own imperialism.

We wish full success to this Conference, and we congratulate its organizers.

Long live international solidarity with the Indian Revolution !

From Yr Aflonyddwch Mawr (Wales)

Yr Aflonyddwch Mawr sends its greetings from Wales to the Milan Meeting of the International Conference to Support the People's War in India.

Yr Aflonyddwch Mawr supports People's War against The Indian State and its murderous and bloody Operation Green Hunt. We will do all in our power to make the people of Wales aware of your struggles for democracy and socialism and support you in the People's War against the Indian Comprador State.

We will do our very best to expose the role of British Imperialism in supporting the murderous activities of the Indian Comprador State in its War on the People of India.

Red salute to your Conference - success to your organisers.

Discussion of the 2nd Day

Report of the International Committee of support of People's War in India

First of all, we think the meeting is achieving a high unity among participants and those who sent messages. The unity in the support for the people's war, in celebrating the anniversary of the CPI (Maoist), in the positive assessment this meeting and thus in considering it as a success, in wanting to continue both the activities of the International Committee in support of the People's War in India and the support to the People's War in various forms.

This unity means that the message to the International Conference of the CPI (Maoist) has been taken up. We think that the meeting, its results and the contents of the speeches will be appreciated by the masses in India and the Indian communists.

The International Committee puts into the practice what it decides. The International Committee is what it realizes. The International Committee carries on the struggle and works to coordinate itself with all the forces that support people's war in India.

After the success of the International Conference in Hamburg, the Committee publicly took up new tasks and, generally, these have been fulfilled. During the process, we saw new members joining the Committee.

- The creation of a website of the International Committee;
- The development of committees and coordination in other countries;
- The circulation and study of the message of Comrade Ganapathy to the International Conference – that came after that a new International Day had been launched and observed, on 1st of July, anniversary of the murder of Comrade Azad;
- The development of a campaign to free Dr. Saibaba, that advanced in the world;
- The organization of the International Day for the freedom of all political prisoners on January 25, 2014;
- The work for an International Delegation to India against the Operation Green Hunt and all forms of repression;
- The organization of a new International Conference on the occasion of the 10th anniversary of the CPI (M).

Furthermore, we had also made clear the general position of the International Committee in three points, that we reiterate:

- The IC supports the people's wars in India, the Philippines, Peru, Turkey and all the work to develop people's wars in the world.
- The IC is aware that the best support for the People's War in India is to make revolution in each country, although this is clearly not a task of the IC.
- The IC asserts that the advance of the unity of communists and anti-imperialist and revolutionary forces helps the development of solidarity and support to the People's War in India.

All the speeches made by the forces belonging the IC, the parties and organizations that accepted the invitation, those who sent messages and other forms of support, are within this view of the matter. It is this view that must go ahead and inspire the continuation of our activity.

All the speeches will be collected in a publication, that will be issued in all the languages into which we can translate them, keeping in mind that, as it has been said in the introduction, this initiative does not close but opens any further action that can be done on the occasion of this anniversary.

It is clear that the best way that we found for a unified mobilization is that of the International Days of support. So it is clear that from this meeting a new International Day of support has to be proposed.

From the speeches come further proposals. Generally, all proposals are accepted and should be made so that they can be adopted by everyone.

We have to stress some things.

The Austrian comrades propose to connect the activities for political prisoners in India to other activities for other political prisoners in the world. We have already observed an International Day for political prisoners in India on January 25, thus we have no hesitation in organizing along with other forces, new International Days for all political prisoners in the world. It is right that this struggle may go ahead together with all the organizations that defend the political prisoners in the world.

Celebrate the 10th Anniversary of the formation of CPI (Maoist) with Revolutionary Spirit!

The introduction and the speeches of Italians, emphasized the role of Indian multinational corporations. In particular, the Italian comrades will put forward a comprehensive proposal for a day of struggle against Indian MNCs.

A meeting will take place in Tunisia in the coming days. So there will be a further development of initiatives of solidarity and support to the people's war in India in this part of the world.

We note two important news coming with messages we received: the Communist Party of Afghanistan promised to integrate into the IC the sympathizers in Europe, as well as the creation of a Committee of support in Afghanistan is announced; the Network of Communist Blogs joined the IC. It means that we still have more say in new countries. This seems to us a significant advance.

The speech of the comrades of BGIA confirmed all the positive things that allowed to realize the International Conference in Hamburg in unity with them, then this coordination with BGIA must continue. The International Committee is not coordination, but a center of proposal and mobilization in support of People's War in India, and it coordinates itself with all the forces that support people's war in India, in the forms commonly decided.

A Call to the People from the Communist Party of India (Maoist)

Shatter the shackles of imperialism and feudalism, Destroy this rotten system ! Build your future and that of the country with your own hands !

Dear people,

Warmest greetings to you from the Communist Party of India (Maoist) on the occasion of its 10th founding anniversary.

Ten years ago, we came before you to announce a joyous event – the merger of two revolutionary streams. A single Maoist party, the Communist Party of India (Maoist) was formed on the 21st of September, 2004, to shoulder the tasks of revolution. Today we place before you an account of these momentous years. It has been a decade of heroic struggle and sacrifices by the best daughters and sons of this land. Nearly two thousand and five hundred of them, from Dandakaranya (Chattisgarh), Bihar, Jharkhand, Andhra Pradesh, Telengana, Maharashtra, Odisha, Paschim Banga, Karnataka, Tamil Nadu, Uttar Pradesh, Uttarakhand and Asom, laid down their precious lives. They include hundreds of great leaders of the revolution, from the topmost level of our party to its basic levels. Scores of valiant fighters of the People's Liberation Guerrilla Army shed their blood in battle with the oppressor's mercenaries. Many among the masses too made the highest sacrifice.

This blood was not shed in vain. It has built on past achievements and valuable experiences. It fuelled a decade of resolute struggle in the political, military, economic and cultural spheres. This was a period which saw ever more militant mobilisation of lakhs of people, people at the bottommost levels of society, in mighty revolt to destroy the oppression and exploitation weighing heavy on them for ages. Glorious years when the shoots of new political power were further nurtured through the destruction of the old power and more extensive building of a new society in a primary stage. And, in this process, the People's Liberation Guerrilla Army (PLGA) was further strengthened in its fighting capability. Its base force, the People's Militia, now numbers in the thousands. These brave women and men stand firm, weapons in hand, to defend every achievement of the people — political, economic, social, cultural and environmental — particularly, the emerging new society they are building.

Yes, we have striven hard to fulfil the promise given to you and made advance. It is so, because we are communists. Our words are sealed in deeds, serving the people. Inheriting the finest traditions of the countless rebellions waged by the peoples of this land throughout the centuries against their oppressors, both local and foreign, drawing inspiration from the heroic struggles of a long line of patriots who fought for true independence from British colonialism, boldly taking up the banner of armed struggle bequeathed to us by the red fighters of the Telengana armed struggle, Tebhaga and Punnapra-Vayalar, forever holding high the Red flag crimson with the blood of lakhs martyrs throughout the world, we will fight on — till our beloved country is liberated from the clutches of imperialism and its lackeys, to make it a base of the world socialist revolution, to advance through socialism to the bright future of communism. We will fight as a contingent of the international proletariat, as comrades-in-arms with all oppressed nations and oppressed people and broad masses of capitalist countries. It is so, because we are the children of that mighty Spring Thunder that shook up the whole of India — the great Naxalbari armed peasant rebellion of 1967. We have been taught and trained by our great founder leaders, comrades Charu Majumdar and Kanhai Chatterjee and by several other beloved leaders. We are guided by the ideology of the international proletariat, Marxism-Leninism-Maoism.

Dear people,

We were led to believe that our country became independent in 1947. Yes, it is true that the hated colonial rule was ended. But the misery of our lives forces us to acknowledge a bitter truth — the foreign masters have only stepped behind a curtain. All the vital controls are still in their hands. We see their presence in the big multinational companies that come to exploit our labour and plunder our resources; in the scant value they attach to our lives as seen in the murderous Bhopal gas incident. We witness it in the control foreign powers have over our entire country in a thousand ways. We see it in the aggressive promotion of consumerism and self-indulgent individualism. We experience it in the invasion of their decadent values and the contempt they breed for our richly diverse ways of life and cultures. We feel its oppressive weight in the disastrous economic policies they impose through agencies like the IMF, World Bank and WTO; policies that uproot people, create new shackles of dependence and pollute the air, water and earth. We see its sinister hands in the arming and training of the Indian state in the counter-revolutionary 'war on the people' waged against the revolutionary armed agrarian revolutionary war. This is imperialism, one of the big mountains weighing on us.

There are two more of them.

The rulers tell us we are fast advancing to information highways, bullet trains, hi-tech cities and what not. They go on and on. But look around you, look at your lives. Despite all those gadgets, smart phones, cable TVs, motor cycles and flashy dresses why do the chains of hidebound tradition weigh so heavy? Why do the landlord, old or new, and the greedy moneylender still corner the major chunk of the peasants' surplus? Why are their wishes inviolate, their word the law, when all of us are supposed to be equal? Why is most of the land still in the hands of few, while the vast majority eke out a meagre living either selling their labour or trudging on scraps of land? Why are women fettered in obnoxious customs? Why is the dalit still preyed upon? Why are the adivasis scorned? Why this ridiculous spectacle of Brahmanic rituals heralding the launch of high tech space vehicles? Why is the inhuman caste system still alive and strong? There are many changes, new things not seen before. But the age-old structures and values of the caste system, of patriarchy, of landlordism still remain. This is feudalism inextricably bound up with caste, another big mountain crushing us.

Yes, the rulers at times admit, there are still vestiges of the old. But they would direct our sight to the glitz of fast growing cities, to huge factories, to big corporates, some of whom have even spread out abroad. Very well, but do you really need to be reminded? Haven't you suffered them, living and slogging in the squalor of slums right in the midst of those glittering cities? Don't you already know them for their land grabbing, resource plundering, greed which drove you from your ancestors lands? Haven't you known their rapacious exploitation, experienced their denial of basic rights and witnessed their murderous attacks on those who demand them? But that is not all. They are big capitalists, no doubt. Yet, for all their pretensions, they are mere servitors of foreign interests, of the imperialists. Born as commission agents of the colonial rulers, they have forever depended on them in all aspects of their existence and growth. They thrive on this dependence. They sell out our country, its people and resources to the foreign marauders. And in their core they conserve Brahmanic feudal values, no matter how modern the technology they employ. From their birth they have remained tied up to feudalism. They are the comprador-bureaucrat capitalists, representing bureaucrat capitalism, yet another big mountain bearing down on us.

These are the three huge mountains weighing down on us. They squeeze out our breath, break our backs. They block our country's development and progress. To take our destiny into our own hands, stand up in freedom, breathe the fresh air of democracy and equality, enjoy the fruits of our labour, clean up the air, water and earth, rid society of the evils of caste, patriarchy and communalism, dynamite Brahmanism that lies at the core of everything reactionary in India, yes, to live as human beings, we must overthrow them. This is what we fight for. This is the meaning of the new democratic revolution we wage. This revolution will bring national independence uprooting imperialist slavery, exploitation and control, and will establish people's democracy uprooting the feudal autocracy. It will establish the rule of the workers, peasants, urban petty bourgeoisie and national bourgeoisie under the leadership of the working class. The New Democratic state would unequivocally recognize the right to self-determination of the nationalities including the right to secession.

They say India is a republic, a secular democracy. The Constitution even lays claims on its being 'socialist'! Isn't this an outrageous mockery of the crores forced to live on 20 rupees per day? And its secularism? Has there been a single year since 1947 without communal attacks, mainly targeting the Muslim minority? Who can forget the thousands massacred in the pogroms against the Sikhs under Congress rule in 1984 and against the Muslims in 2002 under BJP rule? The rulers claim India's strength lie in its 'unity in diversity'. But how are these national and cultural diversities treated? With arrogant contempt, racist, casteist slurs and attacks. That has been the plight of not only adivasis and dalits. It is the searing experience of all the national peoples in the North Eastern States of India. Many nationalities fighting for their freedom, such as the Kashmiris, Nagas and Manipuris, have been under the jackboots of the Indian Army for decades together. They are subjected to the worst atrocities and denied all legal redress by laws that protect the Army from prosecution. Everything, its murders, rapes, tortures, yes everything is Constitutionally sanctioned! The plight of thousands of prisoners, locked up in unimaginable conditions, completes this damning picture of Indian democracy. Their vast majority comes from the bottommost levels of society. Charged with trivial crimes whose punishment would be no more than a year or two, they languish in jails for years together without bail or trial. As for the Maoist political prisoners, the torture in police camps is extended to the jails, by denying them basic rights including medical care, blocking their access to literature and news, limiting or even preventing family visits and obstructing legal rights.

Why should we live in this hell?

The rulers accuse us of violence, of destruction. But what about the violence of this society they protect? Isn't their social system a continuous assault on human existence? When will they account for the countless lives destroyed every minute, or the living dead who barely manage to exist? Where will they answer for the destruction and havoc they create in society and the environment? Our violence is a just reply to this. What we destroy is this human-devouring system, its values and culture. But this is not some mindless act. With the participation and support of the vast masses of the oppressed people of this country, the PLGA led by our party destroys to create. Its violence is purposeful. It is ploughing up the land to clear out anti-people and obsolete relations, structures and institutions. Together with the masses, it plants and builds a new political power, a new social order. These now exist at the primary level as Revolutionary People's Committees (popularly known as Krantikari Janatana Sarkars, Krantikari Jan Committees or Viplava Praja Committees) in the guerrilla bases of Central and Eastern India.

These centres of new political power are as yet mere specs in this vast land. But they already make possible a meaningful life, vibrant with the strength of cooperation, collectivity, rich in values of humane care and concern. They realise the centuries old dream of the exploited to be their own masters. They ensure land to the peasantry. They allow the adivasis to foster the new while nurturing their distinctiveness. They enable the dalits to live a life of dignity. They create space for women by supporting their struggle for liberation. This is the promise of a future for India — a democratic, sovereign, federal, people's republic; self-reliant, just and equitable. This is what is possible if we dare to fight and reach for the heights.

What is this new society? What has it already achieved?

In these villages the Indian state has been destroyed. The outdated authority of feudals and those tribal elders, who lorded over people, has come to an end. The bondage of caste has been smashed and ground prepared for its annihilation. Organs of people's political power were established. This new democratic power is the biggest success achieved by the people through people's war. The Revolutionary People's Committee at village level, with 9 to 11 members, is directly elected every two/three years by all adults, except a few who oppose people and stand in support of the reactionary state and their armed forces and gangs. The voters have the 'Right to recall'. Women have right over half of the political power through equal representation. The people have the all fundamental democratic rights — – Right to meet, Right to form organization, Right to conduct strikes and demonstrations, Right to live according to one's wish, Right to primary education, Right to primary medical treatment, Right to gain minimum employment, etc. The RPC addresses all aspects of the people's lives through its defence, finance, agriculture, trade and industry, judicial, education and culture, health and social welfare, forest protection and public relations departments.

On the basis of 'Land to the Tiller' forest lands were distributed by the RPC to all those who have no land or have scant land. Where people are well organised, women own half of the proprietary right over land. "Equal wages for equal work" is being implemented. Bazaar committees are working to end the indiscriminate exploitation in weekly bazaars. Mass struggles demanding fair wage rates were successfully waged and there was an increase in fund collection to fulfil the needs of the people. All kinds of restrictions and taxes on collection of forest produce were annulled. Forest produce can be freely collected and consumed. The slogan of "All rights to the Adivasis/ local people over Forests" has been realised. There is a ban on taking away any kind of resources from the forest without permission from the RPCs. New entry of imperialist multinational companies (MNCs) and comprador companies has been blocked.

Apart from creating irrigation facilities for crops to increase the average yield and encouraging the usage of organic manure and high-quality local seeds, the RPCs assist the poor peasantry in all possible ways to cultivate their lands. Where conditions permit, with the purpose of raising living standards, fulfilling the masses food needs and those of the PLGA, all efforts are made to develop agricultural production and thus ease dependence on the market. The RPCs are themselves establishing agricultural farms. Mutual aid/ work teams are formed to fulfil various productive tasks and services. Grain Cooperative Associations are formed. The effort to provide nutritious food to people through planting orchards and growing vegetables and greens has begun. Encouragement is given to fish rearing in ponds. The party and PLGA participate in productive labour as a responsibility.

The development of class struggle and building of RPCs has opened doors for new developments in people's cultural life. As the free labour done for the tribal elders came to an end, people fulfilling their needs through mutual aid / work teams has increased. In adivasi areas, collective hunting which used to go on for weeks together was gradually discouraged. Instead, expending labour power on land levelling and creating irrigation facilities which promise growth in yield of agricultural products is increasing.

As the customs and rituals observed with blind faith are proving a hindrance to production and productive forces in the changing conditions, meetings are being held with traditional healers and priests and necessary changes are brought about through discussions. Apart from discouraging consumerism, RPCs are opposing forceful religious conversion of adivasis into Hinduism and Christianity. They also inculcate scientific thinking and atheism. Overspending in marriage ceremonies and death rituals has been reduced.

Women are more respected now. With the development of class struggle and the building of women's organisations, sexual exploitation of feudal lords and demeaning practices have been eliminated. Forced marriages and the Gotul system (practiced in some adivasi areas) have come down considerably. This liberated women and young women from social and psychological pressures.

Schools are opened as part of fulfilling the basic needs of the people. For the first time in history, in Dandakaranya, education is imparted in 'Koya', the majority people's mother tongue. Syllabi were prepared in the light of democratic-socialist ideas. In Bihar-Jharkhand too, special emphasis is laid on reaching education to the adivasis, dalits and other sections deprived of it. Health care is provided as part of fulfilling the basic needs of the people. Sanitation work and providing safe drinking water facilities are taken up actively by training up people's doctors in villages. Construction of houses with the mutual cooperation is taken up for people who do not have proper houses.

Indiscriminate felling of forests and the robbing of valuable timber by the government and the timber mafia was stopped. Instead of people felling trees according to their will and wish for their agricultural and domestic needs, RPCs are striving to fulfil the needs of the people and are regularising the felling of trees. Ban was imposed on pouring poison in river water to catch fish and catching birds which come to water sources in summer. Ban was imposed on hunting which is carried for commercial purposes to sell the meat. Thus preservation of wildlife is encouraged.

Delegates elected from village level RPCs have constituted Area RPCs. Similarly elected delegates from the Area level form the Divisional (District level) RPCs. This represents an extension of territory over which people exercise political power and create the new. It strengthens the advance towards building liberated areas and establishing a People's Government, confronting the Indian state.

Such are the fruits of the protracted people's war. More than three decades of hard sacrifice had already made significant advance in the war zones of Dandakaranya, Bihar-Jharkhand. Given the different situation in these two regions this advance took different forms, but was always guided by the politics of new democratic revolution. In Bihar-Jharkhand a stubborn struggle, backed by arms, to break the bonds of caste-feudalism, defeat upper casteist private armies, seize and distribute land, paving the way for the development of Krantikari Kisan Committees as leading centres. In Dandakaranya, the grounds were laid through struggles in which the adivasi peasantry was mobilised, arms in hand, to smash the authority of the forest department, private contractors and, in some areas, feudal lords or feudalistic tribal elders and end their exploitation. Party and mass organisations were built. Revolutionary armed forces, the People's Guerrilla Army and People's Liberation Guerrilla Army, were formed step by step. Thus embryonic forms of people's power emerged. The merger of the two revolutionary streams in 2004 made these gains, its experiences and lessons, the solid foundation for a bold, powerful, push forward. Its results are before you.

The growth of powerful mass struggles led by our party directed against anti-people projects and state repression is another significant development. Among them the struggles in Nandigram, Lalgarh, Narayanpatna and Kalinga Nagar stand out for the new forms of struggle they brought out and the broad unity they achieved. Forces led by our party have contributed much to the success of the long drawn struggle for separate Telengana. It has also provided strong support to many other mass struggles. This has helped them withstand state repression and attempts to divide them. Through all these struggles the right of the people over water, land and forests (jal-jangal- zameen), their right to lead a life of dignity has been asserted. On this occasion, we must specially mention the unparalleled role played by the people in the main guerilla zones of the revolutionary movement. It is they who bore the brunt of the repression. It is they who gave us confidence. Without their immense sacrifices and unbound enthusiasm this protracted people's war would have been impossible. Run down and scorned as 'backward', and in the process they are becoming the advanced, the path breakers. We hold them up, these makers of history, as glowing models before the whole country. We greet them and salute them!

The formation of the CPI (Maoist) as the single directing centre of the Indian revolution was acclaimed by the people in India and throughout the world. Where the people were inspired, their enemies despaired. True to the nature of all dying forces, they gathered their forces for more and more murderous attacks on the revolutionary forces. This was a total assault. Brute military force was combined with targeted capture and murder of CPI (Maoist) leaders. False talk of peace was coupled with filthy lies and canards. Killer gangs and vigilante forces were armed and set loose in a bid to pit the people against the people. Even then, braving heavy attacks and overcoming major losses the party, PLGA, RPCs and the revolutionary masses stood firm. Heavy blows were given, such as the heroic storming of the Jehanabad jail to liberate imprisoned revolutionaries and the historic seizure of the Nayagarh armoury to arm the PLGA. The historic Unity Congress-9th Congress (country-level gathering of party delegates) of the united party was successfully held. Ideological, political unity was deepened and strengthened. Its unified thinking was raised to a higher level. Its fighting capacity sharpened.

Rebuffed in their counter-revolutionary plans the Indian ruling classes launched 'Operation Green Hunt' in mid 2009 and are intensifying it day by day. They were backed and guided by imperialism, particularly US imperialism. This is a deadly 'war on the people'. It is not green, but red. Red with the blood of adivasis and other masses gunned down by the mercenary troops of the Indian state. Red with blood of the sons and daughters of the people who bravely fought till their death, however poorly armed and outnumbered they fought till their death, however poorly armed and outnumbered they 10 were. This is a manhunt. Party, PLGA members are poisoned and murdered by coverts and counter-revolutionary gangs like the Trithiya Prasthuthi Samithi. It is a frenzied spree of attacks on people — murder, rape, razing down houses, loot, destruction of harvests and granaries, looting and slaughter of poultry and livestock by counter-revolutionary gangs, police and para- military forces. In Bihar, Jharkhand and Paschim Banga, relying on the worst traditions of British colonial suppression known as 'kurki japthi', the houses and property of those associated with the Maoist movement are seized by court orders. The hideous attack in Chintalnar area of Bijapur District, where they razed down four villages, killed and raped is a recent hideous example of state repression. The firing on a gathering of villagers, massacring 17, mostly women and children, at Sarkeguda, Bijapur District is another one. The Indian ruling classes and their political parties often cite lack of funds for not providing even basic amenities to the masses. But they think nothing of pouring in crores of rupees in order to deploy the latest technology in their war on the people. Already 500,000 Central and State mercenary troops have been thrown into this war. Another fifty thousand is on its way. The Air Force provides drones. It is now preparing for aerial attacks. The Army is engaged at brigade level in command and training. With great haste it is raising a special force within the Army for deployment against the Maoist led revolution.

The Indian state is getting ever more desperate and ferocious in its attacks. There is logic to this madness of waging 'war on the people', of 'pitting the people against the people'. Day by day the true condition of the country is being revealed. With 70 per cent of the population scrapping on at Rs. 20 per day, the rulers' tall claim about India entering the league of world powers is seen as a cruel spin story. In opposition to this stands the new armed force, new people's movements, new political power and society emerging in Central and Eastern India. This is beginning to attract wider attention, not only among the deprived but also among a broad section of patriots and progressives. It is increasingly seen as a real alternative to the destruction of human and natural resources by the rapacious exploitation and loot and oppression carried out in the name of development by the imperialist and Indian corporates. It holds up a democratic model where the oppressed classes and social sections— workers, peasantry, urban petty bourgeois, women, adivasis, dalits, national and religious minorities — will be freed from the domination of Brahminical caste-feudalism and all the reactionary values it promotes, serving as the social base of imperialism and colluding with the comprador-bureaucrat bourgeoisie. It shows what is possible — how the landless and poor peasants will get land, how the tremendous energies of collective labour can be unleashed, how traditional knowledge can be harnessed in service of the new, how it is possible to preserve the environment keeping people's interests at heart and achieve a truly sustainable development. It shows in embryonic form the immense potential for a new India. An India that can only arise on the ashes of the existing one, after destroying the Indian state. Yes, there is every reason for the desperation of the Indian rulers. Everyday this new power and society exists, it drives in another nail into their coffins. They see their death in it. Therefore they madly hasten to destroy it. There is something more. The Central and State governments in these regions had already signed a huge number of agreements, selling out the resources to foreign and Indian corporates. But the advance and expansion of the people's, with the involvement of the people, and the establishment of the people's power over land, water and forests spoilt their plans. Now they are under greater pressure. The imperialist system is in the grip of the worldwide economic crises. This is severely impacting the Indian economy. This crisis situation makes the enemies of the people, the imperialist MNCs and Indian compradors, ever more desperate to plunder the resources of our country and exploit the labouring classes to the hilt. Therefore the added haste to crush the struggling people, no matter how much blood is shed.

The boots of the mercenary troops trample the people. They beat them up and shoot them. But that is not all. They also come with 'gifts'. They shower all sorts of gadgets, hand out clothes and food, and insist on giving adivasi children lodging and free tuition. They take them from the remotest villages on “India tours”. This is the ‘soft touch’ complementing the boots and bayonets. This is the sinister plan of US imperialism and their lackeys to lure a section of people and make them the base for building an informant network. They come with promises of reform and development, but only to divide the people. The aim is to isolate the Maoists and hasten the suppression of the revolutionary movement, destruction of the new political power and blocking the expansion of the people’s war. And once that is realised it is back to business as usual, the business of denying basic rights and amenities to the people, the sell out of resources. If you want proof take a look at Saranda in Jharkhand. First, a sudden and all-out brutal attack with more than 10,000 troops to destroy the revolutionary organisations and drive out the PLGA. Then the establishment of a Special Saranda Development Authority with the promise to take basic amenities to all. And finally the real thing — a wholesale sell out of thousands of hectares of pristine forest land to Tata for its mining of iron ore and the entry of around 100 imperialist and comprador corporations into resource rich area; the return of the hated rule of the police station, bureaucrats and local exploiters. This is the actual course of the counter-revolutionary campaigns waged by the Indian state.

In India armed revolution is confronting armed counter-revolution. Combating the superior forces of the Indian state with guerrilla tactics of people’s war the PLGA fights back. Unlike the aggressor, its strength lies in close ties with the masses, in its creativity and steely determination. The annihilation of whole company of the CRPF at Mukkaram (Dandakaranya) by the PLGA was a resounding rebuff to the Indian state’s ‘war on the people’. In a protracted people’s war, it is not the control of territory but the preservation of the revolutionary military force that is decisive. Grasping this principle, the PLGA has evaded efforts of the Indian state to pin it down and destroy it. It has broken out of heavy encirclements by attacking small units of the enemy and breaching its circle. Withdrawing in the face of massive forces it circles around to hit back with all force when an opportunity arises. The Tongpal ambush (Dandakarnya) in which 15 mercenaries were annihilated, and 20 weapons and a large quantity of ammunition were seized and the Farsagaon (Jharkhand) ambush where 5 mercenaries were wiped out and 5 weapons seized testify to the strengths of a protracted people’s war, a war that is led by a Maoist party and draws in the masses in their thousands. It is significant that these ambushes came in an area claimed to be ‘cleared’ by the Indian state. From January till June of this year, in the midst of two intense country-level suppression campaigns, covering 9 States, carried out during December-January 2013-2014 and in March, 39 actions were carried out by the PLGA.

The resistance to the Indian state’s aggression against the new political force, new movement, power and new society is not just a matter of the PLGA. The masses are involved in it greatly. They participate in actions and in their preparations, provide food, shelter and information, help in maintaining supplies, and refuse to cooperate with the enemy. The People’s Militia is a very important component of the PLGA. Apart from its role in actions, it has played an exceptional role in defeating the Salwa Judum and the attacks of Sendra and other counter-revolutionary vigilante gangs in various States. There are many instances where the masses have braved repression to seize back the bodies of martyrs and give them a befitting funeral. On some occasions they have collected all the goods distributed by the enemy forces and burnt them in bonfires.

In Minpa the people joined with the PLGA and waged continuous struggle for more than a week forcing the enemy to close down its military camp. In Herrakoder masses mobilised from surrounding villages and forced the closure of a newly established camp through peaceful, but resolute, agitations. Women played an exemplary role in this. Broad sections of intellectuals, progressives and democrats have also come out in large numbers, in India and abroad, to protest the Indian state's 'war on the people' and expose its atrocities.

Dear people,

Our livelihoods, dignity and very existence are under multiple attacks by neo-liberal policies that intensify foreign and Indian corporates exploitation. In the name of mega projects, mines, power plants, dams, ports, airports, super-highways, metros, hi tech cities, tourist spots/resorts and Special Economic Zones, etc, lakhs and lakhs of our people are being driven out of their habitats. The destructive policies of the rulers are triggering of environmental disasters which take the lives of hundreds and render thousands homeless and penniless. They are enacting laws to cut down, one after the other, the rights won by workers. They are handing over more and more sectors of the economy to the control of imperialist multinationals. Agriculture is being shaped for deeper penetration of foreign capital and technology like genetic engineered plants. Land concentration is taking place in new forms as real estate 'land banks' and SEZs. Corporate farming is being promoted. Existing laws are being amended to assure that the chiefs of MNCs cannot be prosecuted here, no matter what crime they commit.

While they grab land for their projects, nothing is being done to address the cry for land from the deprived sections of the peasantry. Big landlords continue to monopolise this precious resource. They have branched out into sellers of chemical fertilisers and other modern inputs and buyers of agricultural produce. They either function directly as usurers or control co-operative societies. They are also MLAs, MPs and ministers of ruling class political parties, control the local bodies and wield influence over the police forces. Thus they exercise total control in alliance with the comprador- bureaucrat bourgeoisie over the peasants and rural poor and are a big obstruction for country's progress.

Wherever the people protest they are met with brute force and black laws. While the farce of democracy is enacted with elections, the ground reality is one of increasing fascicisation. With the genocidal Modi, this tool of the fascistic RSS, in the Prime Minister's chair, Brahmanical Hindu fascism is consciously promoted by the ruling classes and their imperialist masters. The most reactionary religious fanaticism is fanned up to instigate sectarian violence, specially targeting the Muslim minority. Narrow chauvinism is whipped up to foster illusions of becoming a world power and thus cover up the abject dependence of the country. National cultures and religious diversities and even the formal federal structure of the country are sought to be effaced by sinister moves to impose a 'Hindi-Hindu' mould as supreme.

The rulers know very well that the people's anger is boiling over. Every one of their political parties has been in government at the Central or State level or is now in power. All of them are exposed as equally anti-people, anti- corrupt and corrupt. From time to time they parade one or the other reform. Through such reforms they hope to pacify the masses and breed inactivity and hope to continue and further intensify their exploitation and oppression. Thus the horrendous penetration of imperialism in the form of globalisation, privatisation and liberalisation is now window dressed as "globalisation with a human face". Yes, they will be smiling while they kick you out of your houses, or throw you out of your jobs, or bury you alive in your ancestral lands. It is like in the tactics of their 'war on the people'. First they brutalise you and then give you presents!

Dear people,

Our country is at a critical juncture. Which road should it take? Onwards, to spread the flames of the people's war all over the country and achieve real liberation? Or backwards, to more deprivation, more dependence and more devastation? We await your decision, confident that you will recognise your destiny too in the fight we wage. Meanwhile, we hasten by throwing ourselves and all we have into battle against the Indian state and its foreign mentors. Starting from the martyrs of the historic Naxalbari armed peasant rebellion till today more than twelve thousand have laid down their lives for the great cause of destroying the three mountains bearing down on us. We well know that many more will have to bear that supreme sacrifice as we fight on. We communists will never shirk from sacrifice, for serving the people, for liberating the country. But we hasten. We hasten to quicken the advent of that day when the enemies of our people and the country are finally destroyed, when the imperialists are driven out, and we can begin building a future of self-reliance, of all-round and equitable development of our country, of all our national and ethnic peoples. Let us celebrate the 10th anniversary of the formation of our glorious party in every guerrilla zone and red

Conclusions

International Committee to Support the People's War in India

We think we have done our job, we think we have helped to advance the unity around the people's war in India and also the work of political parties and organizations which already support the people's war in every country.

A new International Day of support to People's War in India will be proposed and launched in the coming weeks.

The International Committee of Support to the People's War in India will support all initiatives for the release of political prisoners all around the world.

The international delegation will go to India and will fulfill its task.

From this forum, we support all the celebrations of the 10th anniversary of the formation of CPI (Maoist). Someone told us that we are not the only to celebrate, we answer: thank goodness!

We had to do our duty, with this important meeting on the occasion of the 10th anniversary, in contemporary with the celebrations in India. All other initiatives, all other declarations receive our support.

We invite you to read the "call to the people of India" of CPI (Maoist), as it explains better many speeches what is the situation in India and the reasons for an international delegation to India, in tune with the action toward the people of India developed by the CPI (Maoist). Its slogans matter beyond India and are part of the common struggle for revolution.

The scene of history is not defined by opinions but by those who play their role in the class war. There was the time of the priority to the support for the war in Peru, then the People's War in Nepal; and every time we gave our support and received contributions. We have always supported the struggle for the people's war in Turkey. We know that the war in Peru, under the leadership of chairman Gonzalo has opened the way internationally, we do not need to repeat this every 5 minutes.

This is the time of the priority to the support to the people's war in India, as a "framework" to direct our efforts to make revolution in each country.

That is what the International Committee and this meeting want to contribute.

We have to take up thoroughly this task and let us conclude the same way we began, singing the International Lal Salaam !
